

Kids as Commodities?

Child trafficking and what to do about it

by

Mike Dottridge

Foreword by Graça Machel

CONTENTS

Foreword	by Graça Machel	12
Chapter 1	Introduction	14
Chapter 2	What is 'child trafficking'?	16
	Trafficking in the context of migration	16
	Is child trafficking something new?	18
	Migrants, prostitution, and trafficking	18
	The difference between the trafficking of children and trafficking of adult women	19
	Different ways of trafficking children	19
	Patterns of cross-border trafficking around the world	20
	How many children are trafficked each year?	21
Chapter 3	How trafficked children are exploited	23
	Commercial sexual exploitation	23
	Marriage	25
	Adoption	25
	Slavery and bonded labour	26
	Child domestic servants	26
	Child beggars	27
	Children in illicit activities	27
	Hazardous child labour	27
	Organ extraction and trafficking	27
Chapter 4	Why children are available for traffickers	28
	Poverty, globalisation and restrictions on migration	28
	Lack of education	29
	Other social factors	29
	Discrimination	29
	Cultural norms	29
	Domestic violence	30
	Crises: natural and man-made	30
	Ambition and hope	30
Chapter 5	Who helps trafficking to occur?	32
	Organised crime or small-scale criminals?	32
	Others who facilitate trafficking	33
	Transport workers	33
	Professionals	33
	Officials who help traffickers	33
Chapter 6	The harm caused to children from trafficking	34
	Coercion to make children obey orders	34
	The effects of exploitation	35
	The specific effects of commercial sexual exploitation	35
Chapter 7	Responses to child trafficking and respecting child rights	38
	Implication of trafficking as a gender issue	39

Chapter 8	Standards at the international level for responding to child trafficking	41
	The definition of trafficking in international law	41
	What the trafficking protocol requires governments to do	42
	Forms of exploitation linked to child trafficking	43
	Commercial adoption –involving ‘improper gain’	43
	Organ trafficking	43
	Regional conventions on child trafficking	43
	International guidelines on how trafficked children should be treated	44
	UN High Commissioner for Refugees guidelines	44
	UN High Commissioner for Human Rights’ recommendations and guidelines on human trafficking	44
	Unicef’s guidelines for protection of the rights of children victims of trafficking	45
Chapter 9	Actors involved in stopping child trafficking and assisting children	47
	NGOs and civil society	47
	Law enforcement agencies	48
	Other statutory bodies	48
	Inter-governmental organisations	49
	Keeping the UN informed about child trafficking	49
	Ensuring that different organisations work together	50
	Transnational NGO networks	50
	NGOs working together in their own country	50
	Law enforcement working with NGOs	51
	Cooperation with the authorities in criminal investigations	51
	NGOs working with inter-governmental organisations and other governments	51
Chapter 10	Laws and action on child trafficking at national level	53
	Enacting law	53
	Getting the wording of the law right	53
	Using prosecutions to provide compensation to trafficked children	54
	Laws that are too harsh	54
	Extraterritorial jurisdiction	54
	Implementing the law	54
	Agreeing other minimum standards at national level	55
	Avoiding causing harm to children	55
Chapter 11	Finding out the facts	57
	Techniques for collecting information	57
	Consulting children	58
	Indirect indications that child trafficking may be occurring	59
	Collecting information systematically	59
	Common difficulties	59
	The risks of estimates and statistics	59
	The dangers of exaggeration and speculation	61
	Being aware of different patterns of child trafficking	61
	Challenging preconceptions	61

Chapter 12	Campaigning against child trafficking	62
	Choosing the aims of a campaign	62
	Measuring success	62
	Campaigning techniques	62
	Pressure on a government abroad	63
	United Arab Emirates	63
	Terre des Hommes' International Campaign against Child Trafficking	63
	Fine-tuning the campaign message for Germany	64
	Fine-tuning the campaign message for Mozambique	65
Chapter 13	Publicity as a technique to combat child trafficking	66
	Achieving a break-through with publicity	66
	Shaming governments into taking action against trafficking	66
	Predicting the effects of publicity	66
	Fictional representations of child trafficking in films	67
Chapter 14	Preventing children from being trafficked	69
	Near to home – preventing trafficking where children are recruited	69
	Birth registration	69
	Education	69
	Increasing household income	70
	Information campaigns to increase awareness of the risk of trafficking	70
	Information for specific audiences	71
	Social work	72
	Difficulties to overcome	72
	Away from home – prevention in places where children are exploited	72
	Help-lines	72
	Educating employers	72
	Educating 'consumers' (tackling 'demand')	73
	Influencing men who buy sex	74
Chapter 15	Identifying and rescuing children who have been trafficked	75
	Recognising children who have been trafficked	75
	Unaccompanied minors	76
	Interception while children are in transit	76
	Intervening on behalf of children being exploited	76
	'Rescues'	77
Chapter 16	Protecting trafficked children and enabling them to recover	78
	Protecting children who have been rescued	79
	Shelters, transit centres and residential care	79
	Protection from traffickers and other threats outside	79
	Protective custody	79
	Protection from abuse while in a transit home	80
	Recovering from physical and psychological harm	80
	'Treatment of children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation	81
	Education and training	81
Chapter 17	Making a new start	83
	Returning home	83
	Government policies on repatriation	83
	NGO approaches to repatriation	83
	Family reunification	84
	Issues concerning family reunification for children trafficked when very young	84
	Preparing the family and home community	84
	Protecting children who are at risk of being trafficked again	84
	Alternatives to family reunification	85

Chapter 18	Conclusions and recommendations	86
	To the international community	86
	To governments	87
	To donors financing counter-trafficking work	87
	To NGO's	87
	Endnotes	89
	References	95

The treaties and guidelines mentioned here can all be downloaded, in English, French and Spanish, as well as some other languages, from the websites of the international organisations concerned.

<http://www.unodc.org/unodc> for the UN Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children.

http://www.who.int/mlp/2003/other_documents/en/Ethical_Safety-GWH.pdf for the World Health Organization's Ethical and Safety Recommendations for Interviewing Trafficked Women.

http://www.unicef.org/media/media_tools_guidelines.html for UNICEF's Principles for ethical reporting on children.

<http://www.seerights.org> for UNICEF's Guidelines for Protection of the Rights of Children Victims of Trafficking.

<http://www.unhcr.ch> for the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights' Recommended Principles and Guidelines.