

ASEAN and Trafficking in Persons

USING DATA AS A TOOL TO COMBAT TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS

Prepared for ASEAN and IOM by Fiona David

IOM International Organization for Migration

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Foreword	viii
Introduction	ix
Tables, Figure and Boxes	xi
Acronyms	xii
I Towards Best Practice Principles for Data on Trafficking	1
I.1 Background	2
I.2 The Starting Point: What is “Trafficking”?	2
I.3 The Difference between “Trafficking” and “Migrant Smuggling”	3
I.4 What is “Data on Trafficking”?	4
I.5 Best Practice Principles for Data on Trafficking	4
II The Country Studies	11
II.1 About the Country Studies	12
II.2 Research Underlying the Country Studies	12
II.3 Research Challenges	13
III Country Study: Cambodia	15
III.1 Background	16
III.2 Government Data Collection Practices in Cambodia	16
III.2.1 Ministry of Interior	18
III.2.1.1 LEASECT Database	18
III.2.1.2 Secured Regional Information Sharing Initiative	19
III.2.2 Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	20
III.2.3 Ministry of Social Affairs, Veterans and Youth Rehabilitation (MoSVY)	21
III.2.3.1 Coordination and Documentation Center	21
III.2.3.2 “Child-Protection.info” Office	22
III.2.3.3 TSEC Database	23
III.2.4 Ministry of Women’s Affairs (MoWA)	24
III.2.4.1 Counter-Trafficking Information Campaign	24
III.2.4.2 Case Management Database	25
III.3 Issues Identified	26
III.3.1 Definitions	26
III.3.2 Limits of Existing IT	27
III.3.3 The Need to Build Capacity in Information Management	27
III.3.4 Towards Integrated Data on Trafficking	27
IV Country Study: Indonesia	31
IV.1 Background	32
IV.2 Government Data Collection Practices in Indonesia	32

IV.2.1	State Ministry of Women Empowerment (MWE)	33
IV.2.2	Coordinating Ministry on People's Welfare	34
IV.2.3	Department of Social Affairs (DSA)	35
IV.2.4	Department of Manpower and Transmigration (DMT)	36
IV.2.5	Directorate General of Immigration (DGIM)	38
IV.2.6	Indonesian National Police	39
IV.3	Issues Identified	41
IV.3.1	The Need for Primary Data	41
IV.3.2	Definitions and Data Categorization	41
IV.3.3	Data not Comparable	43
IV.3.4	Data Collected for Different Objectives	43
IV.3.5	Unrecorded Data	43
IV.3.6	Data Validity	45
IV.3.7	Use of Secondary Data	45
IV.3.8	Problems with Cooperation and Coordination	46
IV.3.9	Lack of Resources	47
IV.3.10	Decentralization and its Effects on Data Collection	47
IV.3.11	Case Identification and Handling	48
IV.3.12	Building Capacity in Information Management	48
IV.3.13	Building Capacity in Data Handling	48
IV.3.14	Improving IT	49
V	Country Study: The Philippines	51
VI	Background	52
V.2	Government Data Collection Practices in the Philippines	52
V.2.1	Department of Justice (DoJ)	53
V.2.2	National Bureau of Investigation (NBI)	54
V.2.3	Philippine National Police (PNP)	55
V.2.4	Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA)	57
V.2.5	Office of the Undersecretary for Migrant Workers' Affairs (UMWA), Department of Foreign Affairs	59
V.2.6	Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD)	60
V.2.7	Philippine Center on Transnational Crime	62
V.3	Issues Identified	64
V.3.1	Legal and Practical Issues	64
V.3.2	Double Counting and Under-reporting	64
V.3.3	Questions About Reliability of Data	65
V.3.4	The Need to Improve Agency Data Skills	65
V.3.5	Agency Practices are not Geared towards Collecting Data on Trafficking	65
V.3.6	Towards Integrated Data on Trafficking	66
VI	Country Study: Thailand	67
VI.1	Background	68
VI.2	Government Data Collection Practices in Thailand	68

VI.2.1	Royal Thai Police	69
VI.2.2	Immigration Bureau	71
VI.2.3	Office of the Attorney-General	73
VI.2.4	Department of Social Development and Welfare (DSW)	74
VI.3	Issues Identified	76
VI.3.1	Inadequacies of the Legal Framework	76
VI.3.2	Double Counting	77
VI.3.3	Reliance on Law Enforcement to Identify Victims	77
VI.3.4	Lack of Analysis and Reporting of Useful Data	78
VI.3.5	Problems with Sharing Data	78
VI.3.6	Data Protection, Privacy and Confidentiality	78
VI.3.7	Towards Integrated Data on Trafficking	78
VII	Lessons Learned and the Way Forward	81
VII.1	Common Challenges	82
VII.1.1	Definitions	82
VII.1.2	Data cannot be Integrated	82
VII.1.3	Poor Communication between Agencies	82
VII.1.4	Gaps in Data Collection	82
VII.1.5	Under-reporting and Over-reporting	83
VII.1.6	Privacy and Confidentiality not Protected	83
VII.1.7	No Oversight of “Data on Trafficking”	83
VII.1.8	Lack of Properly Designed Information Systems	84
VII.1.9	Recognizing the Problems and Committing to Action	84
VII.2	The Way Forward	85
VII.2.1	Understand and Implement the Best Practice Principles	85
VII.2.2	Clarify Laws and Policies on Trafficking	86
VII.2.3	Introduce Oversight of “Data on Trafficking”	86
VII.2.4	Improve Communication	86
VII.2.5	Train Officials in Identifying and Handling Trafficking Cases	87
VII.2.6	Focus on Building Effective Information Systems	87
VII.2.7	Protect Personal Information	88
VII.2.8	Work with ASEAN Neighbours to Agree on Fundamentals	88
Annexes		91
Annex 1	Summary of Data Collected by Country and Agency	92
Cambodia
Annex 2	Data Sheet Used by Ministry of Justice to Collect Data on Criminal Cases in Cambodia	102
Annex 3	Screening Interview Questionnaire Used by the Counter-Trafficking Information Campaign	108
Indonesia
Annex 4	Example: Statistics of Women Trafficking, 2000-2005, Criminal Investigation Division, INP	115
Annex 5	Example: Reporting Form Used by Indonesian National Police: Case Reports of Trafficking in Persons, Regional Police Offices in Indonesia, 2002-2005	116

Annex 6	Example: Table Issued by Department of Social Affairs: Data on Returning Abandoned Workers and Trafficking Victims, 2002-2005	117
Annex 7	IOM Indonesia Screening Form Used at Recovery Centres for Victims of Trafficking	118
Thailand
Annex 8	Preliminary Identification Form Used by Royal Thai Police and Immigration Bureau	124
Annex 9	Report Form PorDorSor. 1/48, Used by Royal Thai Police	127
Annex 10	Additional Report Form PorDorSor. 1/48, Used by Royal Thai Police	128
Annex 11	Format Used by Thai Police Stations to Submit Monthly Reports of Aggregate Data on Trafficking Cases to the Women and Child Division (Royal Thai Police)	129
Annex 12	Form Used by Immigration Bureau: Memorandum of Preliminary Identification to Separate Human Trafficking Victim	130
Annex 13	Example: Monthly Statistic Report on Identification of Trafficking Victim of Women and Children Migrants to Immigration Headquarters	131
Annex 14	Report Form Used by Attorney-General's Office to Report Trafficking Prosecutions	133
Annex 15	Examples of Types of Data Included in Summary Tables Generated by the Kredtrakan Vocational Centre, for Shelter's Monthly Operations Summary, Using Data Collected by the Trafficked Person Case Interview Report	134
General Information
Annex 16	ASEAN Workshop on Improving Data on Trafficking	135
Annex 17	Recommendations of the SOMTC Working Group Meeting on Trafficking in Persons Particularly Women and Children	136
	Bibliography	139