What is prejudice?

As opposed to racism or xenophobia;

Not limited to 'incidents';

Hard to identify or measure;

Often insinuated rather than overtly expressed;

Weighted, historically embedded: Orientalism, anti-semitism, attitudes to Africa, etc.

Bias, assumption, unchallenged 'norms' that are negative pre-judgments:

'women are bad drivers';

'men cannot multi-task'.

Reliant upon commonly held stereotypes.

Prejudice against (Im)migrants

Key causes:

- Labour market competition
- Anxieties about 'what is ours'
- Waves of immigration
- Cultures of 'us' versus 'them'
- Class-based discrimination

Catalysts

- Economic problems
- Past and present conflicts amongst specific groups (Kurds in Turkey, etc)
- Media: propagation of assumptions, attitudes, normative values
- Prevalent global tensions and what they unleash in the everyday

Key Factors

- Types of nationalism;
- Ethnic focus versus civic focus;
- Emphasis on diversity and tolerance;
- Celebrating difference in lieu of assimilation
- Cultures of hospitality

UNU-GCM's Research Findings

- Integration policies work best when combined with provisions for contact across communities;
- Emphasis on good citizenship practices;
- Due political participation;
- Solidarity (neighbourhoods, cities, society)
- Inclusiveness

Dangers of Prejudice

- Prone to support populism or far-right parties;
- Threatens balance of social system;
- Triggers inter-community tensions;
- Causes tensions between sender and receiver countries
- Creates divisive cultures.

Recommendations to States

- Investment in education based on intercultural values;
- Appreciation of diversities;
- Integration of immigrants into the labour market;
- Integration of migrants into political systems;
- Steps towards reducing class-based discrimination

- An examination of reporting in mass media;
- Eliminating certain media practices: eg., linking crime to ethnic minority
- Work at local level to create conditions of trust and solidarity;
- Foster positive neighbourhood practices;
- Engage with civil society and NGOs;
- Access to representation and revising notions of citizenship.
