

Dr. Constance L. Neely is a facilitator for sustainable development, sustainable agriculture and rural development, and holistic, people-centred and multi-stakeholder approaches. In November 2008, she took up the post of Vice President for Advocacy at Heifer International. Her most recent work has focused on the nexus of land-livestock-livelihoods in light of climate change.

Dr. Neely has served over the last ten years as a visiting expert and senior consultant to the UN FAO in Rome in participatory sustainable land management, sustainable agriculture and rural development, sustainable livelihoods, and as a facilitator of electronic and face-to-face multi-stakeholder dialogues and global, regional and national strategic planning and training efforts on sustainable agriculture, land and water related topics.

From 1992 until 2003, she was the Deputy Director of the Sustainable Agriculture and Natural Resources Management Collaborative Research Support Program (SANREM CRSP) funded through the USAID and working in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Her early professional years were spent working with small scale US farmers on soil and water conservation. Dr. Neely is the past president and a current board member of the International Farming Systems Association, serves on the International Landcare Committee and is a co-founder of the Global Livestock Working Group and the Grasslands Carbon Working Group. Dr. Neely is a co-founder of Kalani Organica Coffees and Teas in Seattle, Washington and Hallowed Hawk Farms in Watkinsville, Georgia, USA.
