Important Notice: The bi-annual session of the UN Committee of Experts on International Tax Cooperation in Tax Matters ('The Committee') is a closed meeting, rather than a public one. The Committee has, however, always encouraged wide participation of, and engagement by, observers to the extent practicable. Interested parties are therefore warmly invited to register as observers to the 2017 Committee Session in Geneva. The Committee nevertheless reserves the right to deny or limit participation by non-government representatives. Similarly, while functioning as a highly transparent body, acceptance of participation will be on the basis that reporting of any of the proceedings, including blogging, can only be on the basis that statements made are not attributed and not reported in a way that explicitly or implicitly identifies any speakers, their countries, governments or employers. Live reporting, including by blogging, from the Conference Room is not allowed. The Committee reserves the right to have closed meetings for Committee Members only during the course of the session. Registration closes on 11 October 2017.
