

David E. Joseph, M.S.W., Director of Project Development, is an experienced mediator, facilitator, consultant and trainer who enjoys focusing on constructive conversations and conflict management. As a consultant to the Public Conversations Project, he facilitated dialogues between pro-life and pro-choice individuals; he has also designed and delivered dialogic training to Department of Mental Health attorneys; Attorney-General's staff; and consulted with non-profit boards and school staff. As President of Mediation Solutions, Inc. he is engaged in consultation, mediation and training services to help individuals, families, and organizations improve communications, problem-solving, and conflict management skills. He has taught at Rhode Island College School of Social Work, the New England Institute of Technology, the Community Mediation Center of Rhode Island, and served as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Niger.