

Martin Ängeby is programme officer at International IDEA (The International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance) which is an intergovernmental organization based in Stockholm, owned by 23 member states. Martin Ängeby is a sociologist and political scientist, trained at Lund University, Sweden and Universidad Complutense Madrid. He has worked on and with dialogue as a method in democracy promotion since 1998, on the Balkans, in the Arab World and at his desk. He is co-editor of the book "Dialogue for Democratic Development" (1999, with Roel von Meijenfeldt and Carlos Santiso). Currently, he is co-writing a handbook for practitioners of democratic dialogue, in cooperation with the UNDP and OAS.