FEATURE: J8 Summit – Strengthening the voice of young people

The Junior 8 Summit, or “J8”, is an annual forum where young people from around the world meet and discuss global issues, and share their solutions with G8 leaders and the world community. The Summit is a parallel young people’s event to the annual Group of 8 (G8) Summit, where leaders from eight major industrialized democracies (Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia, the United Kingdom and the United States) meet to discuss global issues of major concern.

The J8 Summit consists of teams of four young people from each G8 country, as well as one young person from each world region to encourage young people’s participation from countries that are not part of the G8. At the end of their week of deliberations, representatives of the J8 Summit present their recommendations, in the form of a J8 Declaration, to G8 leaders during a face-to-face meeting. This year, the J8 Summit will be held in Chitose City in Hokkaido, Japan from 2-9 July.

The topics for this year’s J8 are:

Climate change and global warming

Global warming and climate change pose one of the greatest threats to our planet, and children and young people will bear the brunt of the impact of climate change.

Global health: Child survival, infectious diseases and HIV/AIDS

Infectious diseases, such as HIV, cause a great deal of human suffering and, in some countries, are reversing decades of development progress. Across the world, there is one common denominator: children and young people are disproportionately affected.

Poverty and development

Poverty hits children the hardest. While a severe lack of goods and services hurts all people, it is most threatening to a child’s right to survival, health and nutrition, education, participation, and protection from harm and exploitation.

The J8 Summit was founded to build global citizenship among young people around the world. Although Summit participants share their own ideas, they are also representatives of all young people worldwide. Young people from around the world can learn and share their ideas about J8 topics through the UNICEF's Voices of Youth Discussion Forum, which connects them to J8 participants and other young people around the world interested in J8 issues. (<http://www.unicef.org/voy/discussions/j8login.html>).

A call to young people: What can you do to add your voice to the J8 community?

>> Make sure your voice is heard! Learn more about J8 topics (<http://dev.j8summit.com/usa/learn-participate/2008-topics>) and share your ideas at the Voices of Youth Discussion Forum with the J8 participants who will represent you at the J8 Summit this year.

>> Take a look at videos J8 participants and other young people from around the world have produced. Then, create your own video message (<http://dev.j8summit.com/usa/the-summit/2008/video-gallery>) to share with the J8 community.

>> Explore J8 learning materials (<http://dev.j8summit.com/usa/learning-materials>) you can use at your school, organization or club.

The young people who participate in the J8 are selected through a competition held in each of the G8 countries and around the world. Learn more about the competition so you can participate next year! Get involved in follow-up activities to strengthen young people's roles as active citizens and actors for social change. For more information, please visit www.j8summit.com.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM UN HEADQUARTERS

Experts will meet to draft goals and targets on youth priority areas

An Expert Group Meeting (EGM) on Goals and Targets for the World Programme of Action for Youth: "Youth in Civil Society" and "Youth and their Well-being" will be held in New York from 19-21 May 2008. The EGM will work to develop a comprehensive set of goals and targets in priority areas essential to youth development including: the environment, leisure-time activities, participation in decision-making, intergenerational issues, and information and communication technology, health, HIV/AIDS, drug abuse, juvenile delinquency, girls and young women, and armed conflict. These goals and targets will help to monitor progress towards the implementation of the World Programme of Action for Youth. Participants will include experts, as well as representatives of Member States, UN system offices and youth organizations. The recommendations of the meeting will be included in a Report of the Secretary-General to the Commission for Social Development and the General Assembly. For background information, please see http://www.un.org/esa/socdev/unyin/egm_unhq_may08.htm

A stronger Indigenous Youth presence at the session of the UNPFII

The theme of the seventh session of the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (UNPFII) is "Climate change, bio-cultural diversity and livelihoods: the stewardship role of indigenous peoples and new challenges". The session is being held from 21 April - 2 May. There has been a significant increase in indigenous youth participation, not only within the Indigenous Youth Caucus (IYC), but also within other delegations attending the session. To attend this session, young people have travelled from many regions that cover countries including Norway, Finland, Australia, Libya, Cambodia, Peru, Chile, Kenya, and India. The involvement of young people at the UNPFII has been prominent, empowering and inspiring for everyone in attendance. The IYC has built on the momentum from last year and has prepared statements on climate change, human rights, languages and indigenous children and youth. The IYC will also conduct a special side-event entitled "Indigenous Youth Issues and Challenges from Global and Regional Perspectives" and will submit a set of recommendations regarding Indigenous Youth participation at the UNPFII and other UN meetings. If you would like to learn more or become a part of the United Nations Indigenous Youth Caucus, please visit the project page at <http://projects.takingitglobal.org/indigenous> or email Eriel Deranger at eriel@clc.takingitglobal.org.

12 August: International Youth Day

The theme of this year's International Youth Day commemoration is "Youth and Climate Change: Time for Action". The Day provides a great opportunity to rally support and get key actors - Governments, non-governmental organizations, academic institutions, businesses, and young people - to act on climate change. Email your plans to youth@un.org so that we can showcase ideas on how partnering with Governments, organizations and communities can lead to change. HIGHLIGHTS FROM UN AGENCIES AROUND THE WORLD

ECLAC –Preparing for the Iberoamerican Youth Summit

The UN Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC) in collaboration with the Iberoamerican Youth Organization (OIJ) and the Iberoamerican General Secretariat (Secretaría General Iberoamericana) is preparing the Iberoamerican Youth Report. The Report will be presented at the Iberoamerican Summit on Youth and Development that will take place in San Salvador this October. The Report will provide current information on youth and focus on the contribution of youth to social cohesion in Iberoamerica and will also propose a set of policies that will stimulate debate at the Summit. ECLAC has also coordinated an inter-agency document on youth entitled "Situation and obstacles of youth in Iberoamerica" that was presented at the "International Seminar on Youth and Development". The Seminar was organized by the United Nations, the Government of El Salvador and the Iberoamerican General Secretariat and was held in San Salvador from 1-2 April 2008.

UNEP - CBD - New educational module on biodiversity and agriculture

The Secretariat of the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD) has launched an educational module for children and teachers on the theme of the 2008 International Day for Biological Diversity - biodiversity and agriculture. The module comprises an online educational web portal for primary school students and five accompanying lesson plans for educators. It has been designed to engage students in a variety of fun and active exercises reflecting the principles of education for sustainable development. The children's web portal can be viewed at www.cbd.int/ibd/2008/youth. Educators can download the children's web portal in a booklet format and the lesson plans at www.cbd.int/ibd/2008/teachers.

UNEP - CBD - "The Green Wave" youth tree planting initiative

The Green Wave is a tree planting initiative that enables children and youth to make a difference - one tree, one school, one group at a time. In participating schools, students will plant a native tree species in or near their schoolyard on or around the International Day for Biological Diversity (IBD), 22 May. Students will count down to 10am local time on 22 May, when they will water their tree, thereby creating a "green wave". Students will upload photos and text summaries to an interactive map on the Green Wave website, thereby sharing their tree-planting story with others from around the world. For more information, please visit <http://www.greenwave.cbd.int>.

UNESCO Making schools safer in Latin America

The School Leadership Program of the UNESCO Regional Bureau of Education for Latin America and the Caribbean (OREALC), is supporting the Salvadorian programme "Escuelas Solidarias y Efectivas" addressed to improve the school institutional climate in 130 secondary schools located within highly vulnerable contexts. Part of the schools' vulnerabilities has to do with the presence of juvenile gangs called "maras", inside and around the schools. The Salvadorian programme Escuela Solidarias is providing additional resources to vulnerable schools. In the framework of a technical cooperation agreement between OREALC/UNESCO and the Salvadorian Ministry of Education, the School Leadership Program is providing training for school directors to improve their skills in building peaceful school climates, and to empower teachers as moral authorities within the classroom. The training process includes workshops and videoconferences. For more information, please contact Mr. Alfredo Rojas at arojas@unesco.cl.

UNESCO - Young people in Asia work for a sustainable community

Following the success of the first UNESCO Asian Youth Forum in 2007, the Korean National Commission for UNESCO and the Section for Youth, Sport and Physical Education at UNESCO HQ are organizing the second UNESCO Asian Youth Forum on the theme of "Sustainable community in Asia". The Forum will take place from 26-30 June 2008 in Gwangju City, Republic of Korea and is expected to bring together youth delegates from 28 countries in the region, as well as representatives from youth organizations to reflect, exchange and recommend concrete youth action plans. For more information, please contact the Youth Team of the Korean National Commission for UNESCO at youth@unesco.or.kr.

UNESCO - 2008 International Essay Contest

Young people from around the world are invited to enter the 2008 International Essay Contest organized by UNESCO and the Goi Peace Foundation with the sponsorship of the Earthrise Society. The topic of this year's essay contest is on "My project to create positive change in my environment. How can I foster sustainable development in my community?" The essay would include innovative ideas and concrete plans/projects to address the social, cultural, environmental or economic problems faced by communities. The deadline for submitting entries is 30 June 2008. Complete guidelines are available at http://www.goipeace.or.jp/english/activities/programs/0801_00.htm.

UNFPA - A Guide to Statistics on Young People in Poverty

"Putting Young People Into National Poverty Reduction Strategies: A Guide to Statistics on Young People in Poverty" shows how relevant statistics on young people in poverty can be easily sourced for use in developing national poverty reduction strategies. The available data could provide a profile at three levels of young people in poverty. At the broadest level, it would show the significance of a specific age group of young people in a country's basic demographic structure for any particular period. The second level focuses on the incidence of young people in poverty, using, for example, national averages based on the Millennium Development Goals' indicators. A third level of data offers a more differentiated picture of young people in poverty. This involves presenting detailed data, taking into account young people's differences by gender, rural/urban location, and where the data is available, household poverty status. To download a copy of the publication, please visit <http://www.unfpa.org/publications/detail.cfm?ID=357>.

UNHABITAT - International Youth Crime Prevention and Cities Summit

The provincial Government of KwaZulu-Natal and UN-HABITAT will host the International Youth Crime Prevention and Cities Summit 2008, in the city of Durban, South Africa from 17-21 June 2008. The idea is to prevent and reduce crime and violence in cities, towns and villages. Designed for young people and the local authorities who work with them, this four-day event will enable all participants to mobilize, learn, experience, speak, and act on crime and violence prevention. The Summit is the culmination of a series of regional forums that began in June 2002 to find new ways of tackling urban youth crime and violence in Africa and Latin America. It also springs from global partnerships with youth organizations which participated in the second and third meetings of the World Urban Forum in Barcelona in 2004 and Vancouver in 2006.

WFUNA - Students for a Nuclear Weapons-Free World

The World Federation of United Nations Associations' (WFUNA) President, Dr. Hans Blix, has launched, the "Students for a Nuclear Weapons-Free World" initiative in partnership with the World Academy of Art and Science. The initiative is aimed at engaging students in preparation for the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) 8th Review Conference in 2010. Students are called to participate on the theme "What do you think can lead governments to stay away from, or do away with, nuclear weapons?" by either writing an essay, producing a short video, or designing a poster. Twelve winners will travel to the Students for a Nuclear Weapons-Free World Conference, to be held in Geneva, in the summer of 2008. For more information, or to join in the initiative, please visit <http://www.disarmamenthub.org/>.

WHO/PAHO Adolescent Health Strategy 2008-2018

In 1997, a Pan-American Health Organization (PAHO)/World Health Organization (WHO) resolution called for Member States to adopt a series of recommendations to strengthen adolescent health and to advocate for the inclusion of adolescents and young people in their political agendas. Ten years later, PAHO conducted an external evaluation to assess the progress countries have made in implementing the resolution. The evaluation will provide the key input into the development of a new Strategy for Adolescent Health. This Strategy will include a regional conceptual framework on adolescent health and development, and will provide a basis for the subsequent development of a Plan of Action for 2008-2018. It will be presented to the Directing Council in September 2008 for approval, but will also be used as a background document for the July 2008 preparatory meeting of the Ministers of Youth and Health for the Summit of Ibero-American Heads of State in November 2008. For more information, please visit http://www.who.int/child_adolescent_health.

Iberoamerican meeting on indigenous youth and youth of African descent

From 5 to 9 May 2008, a meeting, entitled "Encuentro: Juventud, Multiculturalidad y Etnias", will review the situation of indigenous youth and youth of African descent in Iberoamerica. The meeting will formulate a strategy to introduce a multicultural and ethnic perspective into the institutional agendas of the Iberoamerican countries. The meeting is organized by the Iberoamerican Youth Organization (OIJ), the Spanish Youth Institute (INJUVE), the Spanish Agency for International Cooperation (AECI), the Indigenous Fund, the Special Secretariat for Policies to Promote Racial Equality of the Presidency of Brazil, UNIFEM and the Andean Commission of Lawyers (CAJPE) and will take place in Santa Cruz de la Sierra, Bolivia. For more information, please visit <http://www.oij.org>.

ECOSOC Regional Innovation Fair in Latin America

The Regional Innovation Fair for Latin America of the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) will take place from 18-19 June 2008 in San José, Costa Rica, on the theme "Youth: the Foundation for Sustainable Development". The fair will identify programmes and policies to achieve the goals defined during the Iberoamerican Youth Year 2008. This Regional Innovation Fair is part of the activities planned within the context of the Annual Ministerial Review of ECOSOC whose objective is to review the implementation of the internationally agreed goals with respect to sustainable development. The outcomes of the Regional Innovation Fair held in Costa Rica will be presented officially during the Annual Ministerial Review.
