

Win FREE one year subscription to NRF by contributing to its Viewpoints section

The Natural Resources Forum (NRF)* is inviting your contribution to the Viewpoints section of the journal, which is a series of policy debates to help stimulate and advance the dialogue on critical issues related to sustainable development. The aim of Viewpoints is to offer a platform for featuring varying perspectives through responses to a provocative question.

You are cordially invited to submit your views on one of the two questions below:

1) For November 2008 issue:

Are women more severely affected by desertification, ...and if so, how?

OR

2) For February 2009 special issue on “Integrated Water Resources Management (IWRM) in Water-Stressed Environment”:

Is IWRM implementation possible without strong regulatory, participatory and incentive frameworks at the river-basin level?

Kindly e-mail your contribution of 200 words or less (about half a page) addressing one of the above questions to: NRForum@un.org. When submitting a contribution, please also provide your name, title, affiliation and contact details.

Authors of the selected contributions to be included in the two issues respectively, will receive free one-year subscription to the Natural Resources Forum.

* The Natural Resources Forum is a quarterly journal edited by the United Nations and published by Wiley-Blackwell.
