

AGENDA 21

ICELAND
Name: Feurvegskoli

This initiative of the World Summit Secretariat has been aimed at generating an education process through which children learn about Agenda 21 and sustainable development.

This was conceived as a national level competition involving school children between the ages of 7 and 12 regarding which relevant National coordinating structures would invite children through schools and educators as well as teachers' associations, to submit drawings that capture their sustainable development aspirations, concerns and their understanding of Agenda 21 objectives.

Some 14 countries conducted poster competitions and the winning entries were submitted to the Secretariat for display in the Summit Convention Centre.
