

UN IN ACTION

Release Date: November 2009

Programme No. 1210

Length: 4'04"

Languages: English, French, Spanish, Russian

GUYANA: NURSES ON THE MOVE

VIDEO AUDIO

NARRATION

GEORGETOWN – LANDSCAPE A country of just over 700,000 people, Guyana is rapidly losing a valuable asset: its skilled

PEOPLE IN THE STREETS nurses. (8")

NURSES AT HOSPITALS Lured by offers – as much as 55,000 US dollars a year – far exceeding what they could ever hope to earn back home, some 25 to 50 percent of Guyanese nurses are leaving. (13.5")

JACQUELINE GULSTONE: (English) F

JACQUELINE ON CAMERA "Economically things became better for me when I came to the United States of America.

And that was the reason why I migrated." (7")

NARRATION

JACQUELINE AT WORK

But money wasn't the only reason Jacqueline

Gulstone left home after receiving free training

in Guyana. (6")

JACQUELINE GULSTONE: (English) F

JACQUELINE ON CAMERA "I wanted to develop myself in terms of my education." (4")

	NARRATION
NEW YORK CITY SHOTS	Jacqueline eyed the United States as a land of new opportunity. (3.5")
JACQUELINE LEAVES HOME AND	Settling in Brooklyn, New York, she worked
DRIVES TO WORK	hard to fulfil her dreams. (3.5")
JACQUELINE AT HOME	During the day Jacqueline worked as a nurse;
	by night she hit the books. (4")
BROOKDALE HOSPITAL	Today she's a nurse practitioner at Brookdale Hospital Medical Center. (4")
	American hospitals like this one are starved for nurses. (3") Brookdale's Director of Nursing, Susan Pennacchio, says too few nurses are graduating from American schools. (6.5")
	PENNACHIO: (English) F
PENNACHIO ON CAMERA	"The reason why we can't train enough nurses here is because they don't have enough nursing instructors." (3.5")
	NARRATION
NURSES AT BROOKDALE HOSPITAL	To handle its workload, Brookdale is forced to recruit from abroad. But what's helping the NURSES IN GUYANA	U.S. is hurting Guyana. The United Nations Population Fund, UNFPA, is assisting the government with funds to tackle healthcare

Caribbean region, believes that the exodus of ROBINSON TEACHES SEMINAR nurses is affecting progress. (25.5) issues. Harold Robinson, Director for the

ROBINSON WALKS

ROBINSON ON CAMERA

ROBINSON: (English) M"...all the efforts, not only the country's efforts in reducing maternal mortality but all the health sector efforts are really constrained by this out

migration." (10.5")

NARRATION

GUYANA NURSING SCHOOL

NURSES IN CLASS

RAMSAMMY IN OFFICE

JACQUELINE ON CAMERA

Over the last 50 years, Guyana has trained thousands of highly qualified nurses. But as fast as they train new ones, other countries are scooping them up. Minister of Health, Dr. Leslie Ramsammy. (13.5")

RAMSAMMY: (English) M

RAMSAMMY ON CAMERA "Let's not have any doubt and make no bones about it, migration of our health workers impacts severely on achieving health for all." (10.5")

NARRATION

NURSES IN CLASSROOM

To compensate for expected losses of nurses,

Guyana has already increased class sizes. This year alone some 700 students are enrolled –

close to half will leave. (12")

NURSES AT WORK In exchange for free training, all Guyanese nurses sign a contract agreeing to work between five and eight years in the country. If they break their contract, they must reimburse

the government. (11.5")

JACQUELINE GULSTONE: (English) F

"I had almost completed my contract – probably a couple of months short of that before I left but

I still had to pay some money." (5.5"

	N	Α	R	R	Α	ΤI	0	٨
--	---	---	---	---	---	----	---	---

JACQUELINE CARRIES LUGGAGE
WITH MEDICINE

But now Jacqueline is anxious to repay some of her country's investment in her training. She visits Guyana three times a year to provide care to those in under-served communities. (12.5")

JACQUELINE IN GUYANA CARES

FOR PATIENTS

PATIENTS RECEIVE MEDICINE It's an on-going battle for Guyana to guarantee decent healthcare for all. And with the constant

NURSE AT WORK flow of nurses leaving – that goal may be harder to achieve than ever. (10")

UN LOGO This report was prepared by Mary Ferreira for the United Nations. (4")