Events are co-sponsored by the NGO Committees on the Status of Women (Geneva, New York and Vienna) and with U.N. partners as listed. These Committees of the Conference of NGOs (CONGO) represent hundreds of NGOs in consultative relationship with the U.N.

Facilitated in cooperation with the U.N. Division for the Advancement of Women, and supported by Barnard College, and individual contributions.

NOTE: Please see your registration confirmation letter from the United Nations Division for the Advancement of Women or the Womenwatch website at www.un.org/womenwatch/daw/csw/49sess.htm for specific hours of operation for registration for NGOs attending the U.N. C.S.W. meetings. Be sure to bring your letter of confirmation and a government-issued photo identification with you for registration at the U.N. meeting. You do not need this information when registering at the NGO events.

The NGO Committee on the Status of Women, NY was created in 1972 as a Committee of the Conference of NGOs in Consultative Relationship with the United Nations (CONGO.) Committees were later formed in Geneva and Vienna. These three Committees have worked together over the years to bring a positive presence to women's issues globally for over 30 years.

It is our goal to help NGO representatives link with those who are like-minded to bring the issues of women from around the world to the attention of decision-makers at the United Nations. We provide space for NGO meetings and side events, and facilitate training and the sharing of information through an annual consultation. We work closely with the United Nations Division for the Advancement of Women to assist NGO representatives in giving voice to their concerns.

Today, the NGO Committee on the Status of Women, NY has compiled a global list of contacts and has a website – www.ngocongo.org/ngosubs/stwomny.htm – offering information to NGOs worldwide. The Committee is a voluntary organization, without paid staff, that covers expenses for its administration and programs through membership dues and donations. We invite you to join us and to contribute to our on-going programs with a donation. We are a charitable 501(c)3 organization, which means that your contribution to these efforts is tax deductible to the extent provided by US law.
