Global Migration Governance

Project

Dr Alexander Betts
University of Oxford
What is the Project?

- 3-year academic research project
- University of Oxford
- Funded by the MacArthur Foundation
- Political Science and International Relations
- Focus on the international institutions that govern international migration
The project begins from two observations:

i) On a policy level:
   global migration governance is fragmented and incoherent

ii) On an academic level:
    there has been a lack of political science and international relations scholarship on migration
Academic Aims

- To explore the role and relevance of international institutions in migration
- Comparison with other issue-area: environment/trade/climate change etc.
- Comparison across areas of migration: high-skilled/low-skilled/refugees/irregular etc.
Policy Aims

- To set out options for coherent global migration governance which are:
  i) Politically feasible;
  ii) Human rights respecting;
  iii) Mutually beneficial for states.
Stages of Research

- Phase 1: Mapping
- Phase 2: State consultations
- Phase 3: Disseminating options for coherent governance
Phase 1: Mapping

- Multilateral, regional, bilateral mechanisms
- Formal, informal mechanisms
- Linkages to development, trade, security, human rights governance
- Research in Geneva, New York, D.C.
- Carried out May-December 2008.
Phase 2: Consultations

- Interviews in state capitals (January 2009-)
- To ask governments:
  i) How they use different international institutions
  ii) What they see as the strengths and weaknesses of the existing institutional framework
  iii) Their visions for global migration governance
Phase 3: Dissemination

- Offering options for global migration governance
- A policy briefing
- Presentations in New York, Geneva and state capitals
Outputs

- Working papers (on project website)
- Edited volume (Global Migration Governance, 2009)
- Final book, report, and policy briefing
How you can contribute

- We will be visiting state capitals in from January 2009- March 2010.
- We would appreciate it if you could provide us with relevant contacts in capitals and missions, and be available for interview.
- Please contact us by e-mail.
Contact Information

- Website: www.globaleconomicgovernance.org/migration
- E-mail: alexander.betts@politics.ox.ac.uk
Thank you for listening!