Introductory note

The present chapter contains material relating to the practice of the Security Council on voting under Article 27 of the Charter.¹ The arrangement of the material basically follows that of the corresponding chapter in earlier volumes of the Repertoire.

Part I relates to the distinction between procedural and non-procedural matters. There were no instances of voting on a procedural matter during the period under review. Part I lists those instances in which the vote indicated the non-procedural nature of the decision. Part II contains no entries, as during the period under review there was no material relating to the practice of the Council in voting upon the question whether a matter was procedural within the meaning of Article 27 (2). Part III is concerned with the abstention, non-participation or absence of a Council member in relation to the requirements of Article 27 (3). Part IV addresses decisions adopted by consensus or without a vote.

The material dealt with under parts I, III and IV is set out in the tables included in each section. It is also contained in the yearly volumes of *Resolutions and Decisions of the Security Council*² as well as in the annual reports of the Security Council to the General Assembly covering the period under review.³

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.
2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.
3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

¹ Material relating to voting in connection with the election of judges under Article 10 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice is included in chapter VI, part 1V. Material on the voting procedure employed by the Council in connection with applications for admission to membership is contained in chapter VII.

³ See A/48/2, A/49/2, A/50/2 and A/51/2.

Part I

Procedural and non-procedural matters

Note

Most votes in the Council do not, of themselves, indicate whether the Council considers the matter voted upon as being of a procedural or non-procedural character: this is the case, for instance, when a proposal is adopted by a unanimous vote; when all permanent members vote in favour of a proposal; or when a proposal fails to obtain the necessary nine votes in its favour. This Part comprises instances in which the vote by the Council indicated the non-procedural character of the matter under consideration. There was no discussion of whether the question under consideration was of a procedural or non-procedural nature.

Whether a matter is deemed procedural or non-procedural is clearly established in those instances in which a proposal obtained nine or more votes, with one or more permanent members casting a negative vote. Adoption by the Council in such circumstances indicates the procedural character of the matter, while rejection by the Council in such circumstances indicates the non-procedural character of the matter. During the period under review, the Security Council did not vote on matters that were procedural in nature.

^a For the context and explanations of vote, see the relevant case studies in chapter VIII.

Part II

Proceedings of the Security Council regarding voting upon the question whether the matter was procedural within the meaning of Article 27, paragraph 2, of the Charter

Note

On certain occasions, the Security Council has found it necessary to decide, by vote, the question whether or not the matter under consideration was procedural within the meaning of Article 27 (2). This question has come to be termed, after the language used in the San Francisco Statement on Voting Procedure, “the preliminary question”.

There were no instances of voting on the preliminary question during the period under review.

Part III

Abstention, non-participation or absence in relation to Article 27, paragraph 3, of the Charter

Note

According to Article 27 (3) of the Charter, the affirmative vote of nine members for decisions on non-procedural (substantive) matters must include “the concurring votes of the permanent members”. Part III concerns the application of this requirement: (a) in the light of the proviso to Article 27 (3) (obligatory abstention); and (b) in circumstances when a permanent member voluntarily abstains, does not participate in the vote, or is absent at the time of the vote.

A. Obligatory abstention

The proviso to Article 27 (3) states:

... provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

During the period under review, there was no instance in which a member abstained in accordance with the proviso to Article 27 (3), nor was there any discussion of the issue of obligatory abstention.

B. Voluntary abstention, non-participation or absence in relation to Article 27, paragraph 3

This section lists those instances in which permanent members voluntarily abstained from voting. In each case, in conformity with its consistent practice, the Security Council considered the resolution in question to have been adopted notwithstanding the abstention.

During the period under review, there were no instances of non-participation by permanent members or of votes taken in their absence. During the period, however, one elected member, Rwanda, was not represented on the Council from 14 July to 2 September 1994. The Council adopted four resolutions with only 14 members.⁴ The instances of abstention by a permanent member are recorded in the table below.

Cases in which permanent members abstained or did not participate otherwise than in accordance with the proviso to Article 27, paragraph 3

^a Resolution 904 (1994) was adopted as a whole without a vote following a paragraph-by-paragraph vote: the United States abstained in the voting on the second and sixth preambular paragraphs.

^b This reflects the result of the voting during the period when Rwanda was not represented on the Council.

Part IV

Adoption of resolutions and decisions by consensus or without a vote

Note

Most procedural motions during this period were approved without a vote. Certain decisions were taken without a vote, as shown in the case of the resolutions, in the table in section A below. In those instances, the President of the Council, in accordance with the understanding reached in prior consultations, proposed “that the Council adopt without a vote” the draft resolution.

Votes were also not taken on decisions that took the form of statements by the President on behalf of the Council or on behalf of the members of the Council. These “presidential statements” were issued after having been agreed upon by members of the Council during consultations. In some cases, they were announced at a formal meeting of the Council (section B.1); in others, they were simply issued in written form (section B.2).

In yet other cases, Security Council decisions were recorded in letters or notes from the President of the Council, with no reference to a vote having been taken (section C). While such letters and notes are usually simply issued in written form, during the period under consideration there were two instances in which the Council took a decision at a meeting which was subsequently reflected in a note by the President of the Council.⁵

During the period under review, following agreement by the members, the Council began the practice of having presidential statements published, effective 1 January 1994, in an annual series using the prefix “S/PRST/_” followed by the year and the number of the statement.⁶ The Council first issued a presidential statement following its 3327th meeting on 7 January 1994,⁷ which was held to consider the item entitled “The situation in the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina”. Previously, the statements were issued as documents in the S/ series.

⁵ The 3440th and 3593rd meetings, both dealing with the consideration of the draft report of the Security Council to the General Assembly. In both cases, after the adoption by the Council of its draft report, the President stated that that decision would be reflected in a note by the President of the Council (S/1994/1176 and S/1995/948, respectively).

⁶ Note by the President of the Security Council dated 30 June 1993 (S/26015, para. 2).
