Introductory note

The present chapter contains material relating to the practice of the Security Council on decision-making and voting under Article 27 of the Charter.¹ The arrangement of the material basically follows that of the corresponding chapter in earlier volumes of the Repertoire.

Part I relates to the distinction between procedural and non-procedural matters. It lists those instances in which the vote indicated the non-procedural nature of the decision. There were no instances of voting on a procedural matter during the period under review. Part II contains no entries, as during the period under review there was no material relating to the practice of the Council in voting upon the question whether a matter was procedural within the meaning of Article 27, paragraph 2. Part III is concerned with the abstention, non-participation or absence of a Council member in relation to the requirements of Article 27, paragraph 3. Part IV addresses decisions adopted by consensus or without a vote.

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.
2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.
3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

¹ Material relating to voting in connection with the election of judges under Article 10 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice is included in chapter VI. Material on the voting procedure employed by the Council in connection with the applications for admission to membership in the United Nations is contained in chapter VII.

Part I Procedural and non-procedural matters

Note

Most votes in the Council do not, of themselves, indicate whether the Council considers the matter voted upon as being of a procedural or non-procedural character: this is the case, for instance, when a proposal is adopted by a unanimous vote; when all permanent members vote in favour of a proposal; or when a proposal fails to obtain the necessary nine votes in its favour. Part I comprises instances in which the vote by the Council indicated the non-procedural character of the matter under consideration. There was no discussion of whether the question under consideration was of a procedural or non-procedural nature.

Whether a matter is deemed procedural or non-procedural is clearly established in those instances in which a proposal obtained nine or more votes, with one or more permanent members casting a negative vote. Adoption by the Council in such circumstances indicates the procedural character of the matter, while rejection by the Council in such circumstances indicates the non-procedural character of the matter. During the period under review, the Security Council did not vote on matters that were procedural in nature.

Part II

Proceedings of the Security Council regarding voting upon the question whether the matter was procedural within the meaning of Article 27, paragraph 2, of the Charter

On certain occasions, the Security Council has found it necessary to decide, by vote, the question whether or not the matter under consideration was procedural within the meaning of Article 27 (2). This question has come to be termed, after the language used in the San Francisco Statement on Voting Procedure, “the preliminary question”.

There were no instances of voting on the preliminary question during the period under review.

Part III

Abstention, non-participation or absence in relation to Article 27, paragraph 3, of the Charter

Note

According to Article 27 (3) of the Charter, the affirmative vote of nine members for decisions on non-procedural (substantive) matters must include “the concurring votes of the permanent members”. Part III concerns the application of this requirement: (a) in the light of the proviso to Article 27 (3) (obligatory abstention); and (b) in circumstances when a permanent and/or elected member voluntarily abstains, does not participate in the vote, or is absent at the time of the vote.

A. Obligatory abstention

The proviso to Article 27 (3) states:

provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

During the period under review, there was no instance in which a member abstained in accordance with the proviso to Article 27 (3), nor was there any discussion of the issue of obligatory abstention.²

B. Voluntary abstention, non-participation, or absence in relation to Article 27, paragraph 3

This section lists those instances in which permanent members voluntarily abstained from voting. In each case, in conformity with its consistent practice, the Security Council considered the resolution in question to have been adopted notwithstanding the abstention.

During the period under review, there was one instance of non-participation by a permanent member. There were no instances of votes taken in the absence of permanent members. Instances of abstention and non-participation by permanent members are recorded in the table below.

² Explicit references were made, however, to Article 27 (3) in the deliberations of the Council. At the 3864th meeting on 20 March 1998, held in connection with the item entitled “Letters dated 20 and 23 December 1991, from France, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America” (S/23306, S/23307, S/23308, S/23309 and S/23317), the representative of the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya reiterated his delegation’s position that resolution 731 (1992) had been adopted in violation of Article 27 (3), the parties to the dispute in that case having taken part in the voting and not abstaining, as provided in the Article. See S/PV.4128; see also case 1, chap. IV of the eleventh Supplement to the Repertoire.

At the 4077th meeting on 3 December 1999, held in connection with the item “The situation between Iraq and Kuwait”, the representative of France decided not to participate in the vote on draft resolution S/1999/1215, which was adopted as resolution 1280 (1999). Speaking before the vote, that Council member believed that the draft resolution had been drafted in such a way as to deliberately render incapable of realization the measure that it proposed. Moreover, he understood that the vote was not about the adoption of the text before Council members, but was instead being used to bring pressure to bear on the members of the Security Council with regard to another exercise and another resolution. It was in the context of “this exceptional and extremely unusual process” that his delegation saw non-participation in the vote as the only reasonable position to take.

Following the vote, the representative of France pointed out that, in certain very rare cases, texts that “we know will not be implemented and therefore do not enhance the Council’s authority should not be put to the vote”. He expressed the view that it was necessary to know how to take a stand so as not to participate in an exercise that was materially unworkable.³

³ See S/PV.4077 and Corr.1, pp. 2 and 7.

The representative of the Netherlands pointed out that non-participation in the voting was extremely rare, and that few non-permanent members had ever resorted to this extraordinary measure. He stated that his Minister for Foreign Affairs, in the General Assembly, had suggested the usefulness of looking for a way in which permanent members might express their absolutely negative attitude without being obliged to cast a veto. He had simply hoped that in the current vote he was seeing an example of that procedure, in which a permanent member said no without casting a veto.⁴

Part IV

Adoption of resolutions and decisions without a vote

Note

All procedural motions during this period were approved without a vote.

Certain decisions of substance were also taken without a vote, as shown in the case of four resolutions in section A below. In those instances, the President of the Council, in accordance with the understanding reached in prior consultations, proposed “that the Council adopt without a vote” the draft resolution. No votes were taken by consensus during the period under review.

Votes were not taken on decisions that took the form of statements by the President on behalf of the Council or on behalf of the members of the Council. These “presidential statements” were issued after having been agreed upon by members of the Council during consultations. With two exceptions, all presidential statements were announced during formal meetings of the Council (see section B.1); the practice of issuing a statement only in written form without formal announcement at a meeting was not observed during this period. In two instances, after consultations, the President of the Security Council issued a statement to the media which was issued as an official “presidential statement” (see section B.2).

In other instances, Security Council decisions were recorded in notes by or letters from the President of the Council, with no reference to a vote having been taken (see section C). While generally such notes and letters were simply issued in written form, notes reflecting the Council’s decision to adopt its draft annual report were announced at formal meetings annually during the period under review.⁵ The content of two letters was also agreed upon and announced at formal meetings.⁶

⁵ Note by the President dated 13 November 1996, reflecting the Council’s decision to adopt the draft annual report of the Security Council for the period 16 June 1995 to 15 June 1996, announced at the 3711th meeting (S/1996/935); note by the President dated 12 September 1997, reflecting the Council’s decision to adopt the draft annual report of the Security Council for the period 16 June 1996 to 15 June 1997, announced at the 3815th meeting (S/1997/706); note by the President dated 9 September 1998, reflecting the Council’s decision to adopt the draft annual report for the period 16 June 1997 to 15 June 1998, announced at the 3923rd meeting (S/1998/843); note by the President dated 2 September 1999, reflecting the Council’s decision to adopt the draft annual report for the period 16 June 1998 to 15 June 1999, announced at the 4040th meeting (S/1999/933).

⁶ A letter from the President dated 15 July 1998, informing the Secretary-General of the Council’s decision to extend the deadline for the nomination of judges of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda until 4 August 1998 was agreed upon and announced at the 3908th meeting (S/1998/646). A letter from the President dated 15 July 1998, informing the Secretary-General of the Council’s decision to extend the deadline for nominations of judges of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda until 14 September 1998 was agreed upon and announced at the 3917th meeting (S/1998/761).
