

Dr. Thabet Abu Ras

Received a B.S.C in 1982 in Geology and Mineralogy, from Ben Gurion University, M. A In 1982, Geography from University of Northern Iowa, USA and Ph.D. in 1997 in Geography and Regional Development from the University of Arizona, USA. Lecturer at the Department of Geography and Environmental Development at the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, with a focus on ethnic relations and land and planning and regional development. Former director of Shatil's office in Beer Sheva. Between 2004-2006, he was the director of development of the recently-recognized Bedouin villages in the Naqab. Currently, he is the co-director of New Horizon – An Arab-Jewish Institute for Shared Society in Israel.