

Elisabeth Barot has been the social sciences Program Officer of the Canadian Commission for UNESCO for 14 years. During this period, among other Campaigns, she has been rallying strategic alliances around the issues of Tolerance , Culture of Peace and Philosophy Day. She coordinated twice International meetings of UNESCO in Montreal with the cooperation of many partners in education for Human rights before the Conference of Vienna and in Bioethics for the preparation of UNESCO's Declaration on Bioethics and Human rights more recently.

Her ongoing training is in communication, planning and techniques of public participation. She has a strong base in comparative studies with Diplomas in Ibero American literature (BA), Political Sciences International Relations(MA) and Ibero American Studies(Doctorate). Her doctoral Thesis was on the process of democratization in Spain when the process of recognition of autonomies and integration to Europe seemed to be contradictory. Since then she has been continuing her exploration for a better understanding of democratic systems.