

Eric Marlier is Senior Advisor at the CEPS/INSTEAD Research Institute (Luxembourg), where he is a member of the Institute's management committee and is supervising international issues. He is regularly called on as an international policy advisor, particularly on the EU cooperation in social protection and social inclusion. His main research activities include social monitoring (social indicators and "targeting"), comparative socio-economic analysis (esp. on poverty and social exclusion issues), the EU Social Protection and Social Inclusion Process, as well as the implementation of international social surveys (ECHP, EU-SILC...) and attitudinal surveys (Eurobarometer). For about 20 years, he has been in charge of many international dossiers - for the European Commission, the Council of Europe, the United Nations (UNDP and UNICEF), the research community (e.g. the EPUNet international research network) and the private sector. He also worked for the Belgian, Finnish and Luxembourg Governments, as (co-)organiser of international conferences on social protection and/or social inclusion in the context of their Presidencies of the EU. He has written two reference books together with Tony Atkinson, Bea Cantillon and Brian Nolan: "Social Indicators: The EU and Social Inclusion" (OUP, 2002) and "The EU and social inclusion: Facing the challenges" (The Policy Press, 2007). He has been a member of the EU Social Protection Committee's Indicators Sub-Group since its creation in February 2001 and of various EU Task-Forces (e.g. on "Over-indebtedness and Financial Exclusion" and on "Material Deprivation"). He currently chairs an EU Task-Force on Child poverty and Child well-being, and manages the European Commission's Network of independent experts on social inclusion.
