

Martin Ängeby is leading the work on social integration for the Regional Planning Office of Stockholm County Council. Currently, this office is in development of a new regional plan for the Stockholm region in which one of the main ambitions is to find remedies to the increasing social segregation in the housing and labor markets of the Stockholm region. Martin Ängeby is a sociologist and political scientist, trained at Lund University, Sweden and Universidad Complutense Madrid. Previously, Mr. Ängeby worked for eight years at International IDEA (The International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance), on the Balkans, in the Arab World and with dialogue methodology. He is co-editor of the book "Dialogue for Democratic Development" (1999, with Roel von Meijenfeldt and Carlos Santiso) and has contributed to several other publications on the subject.
