Global trends in Urban Youth Development

"UNTIL THE LIONS HAVE THEIR OWN HISTORIANS, HISTORY WILL BE WRITTEN BY THE HUNTERS."

A SOUTH AFRICAN PROVERB

UN-HABITAT
Global trends in URBAN development

Year 1970
63% RURAL
37% URBAN

Year 2000
53% RURAL
47% URBAN

Year 2020
44% RURAL
56% URBAN

Year 2007 … Homo sapiens to homo urbanus
Global trends urban ...

Slum Dwellers

Asia
Africa
Latin America

Millions

1999 2005
60% of the Nairobi population lives on the same surface as its golf courses - 5%
Global trends in YOUTH development

Globally, youth, aged 15- to 24, now represent almost one-fifth of the world’s population.
Almost half of the global population is under the age of 24; 1.2 billion people are younger than 15.

Within developing regions, it is the least developed countries that remain younger than the rest of the world.

In 2005, the global median age was 28 years, but in 10 least-developed African countries, the median age was 16 or younger.
Global trends youth ...

Global Median Age (in years), 2001
Global trends youth ...

Young people in developing world are urban

- 60 percent of the world population will live in cities by 2030, and that 60 per cent of these urban residents are likely to be under the age of 18
Global youth priorities

Education and Training
- Primary education is low because of poverty of lack of schools
- Secondary enrollment is spotty, and failure and drop out is high, especially amongst girls
- Schooling under pressure - subsistence employment often more important
Global youth priorities

Employment

- Youth make up 41% of the world’s unemployed, (ILO) or 74 million young people living in urban areas
- Long term unemployment is high and associated with ill health, involvement in crime, and substance abuse
- Unemployment higher for young women than young men, especially in developing world
- Child labour places children and youth, especially girls, at risk of involvement in illegal activities
Global youth priorities

IMPORTANT NOTE ON POVERTY
Most country estimates may systematically underestimate youth poverty because of the focus on data collection based on households and families. Country plans often fail to include youth in their strategies to deal with poverty problems.
Global youth priorities

Health

- Urbanization impacts health as well as health and social service, rapid process a challenge to public health policy and urban services.
- Sexually transmitted diseases, i.e. HIV AIDS exacerbated by urban conditions.
  - 1/3 of all currently infected and half of all new HIV AIDS infections occur in youth aged 15 to 24.
  - Girls vulnerable because of poverty and sexual exploitation, forced and early marriage, rape, sexual abuse, and trafficking.
- Youth lack access to sexual health information and services.
Global youth priorities

Health

substance abuse and the age of use are changing and have become a great public health concern, especially in cities where there is greater availability, and pressure to abuse them.
Depriving children and youth of recreation and leisure time, and designated urban space is likely to result in frustrated young people as they grow up, without the skills to participate fully in their communities.

Many children and youth in urban centres are excluded from ca threa youth living in poor and overcrowded urban environments are at much higher risk of becoming involved in committing crimes as well as being victimised.
Global youth priorities

Girls and Young Women

- Girls are more vulnerable to trafficking, sexual assault, exploitation, and sexually transmitted disease including HIV/AIDS.
- Safe and dignified spaces, especially in regards to sanitation, are not common.
- These disadvantages are increased for girls and young women in urban areas where they are even more vulnerable to discrimination and exploitation than in rural settings.
Global youth priorities

Conflict Prevention

- In the past ten years, an estimated 2 million children and youth, some as young as seven or eight, have died in armed conflicts, and 5 million have been disabled.

- Conflict prevention and the reintegration of previous child soldiers into urban areas present huge challenges.
Global youth priorities

Inter-dependency between generations
promotion of reciprocal relationships given that those traditional family patterns and responsibilities are being challenged by the impact of HIV/AIDS and civil war on children and youth.

Children and youth responsibilities are changing with the loss of parents and care-givers.
Global youth priorities

Globalization and Technology

- Globalisation and technological developments also affect children and the youth in urban areas in all parts of the world, both positively and negatively.
- Africa fastest growing mobile phone market in the world, transforming the way youth communicate in all realms: socially, economically
- Many developing countries still do not have access to these new technologies, though less so in urban areas.
Global youth priorities

Participation and Governance

- Urban youth are rarely asked to participate in planning and management and, therefore, in their own development and treated as citizens.
- can lead to adult abuse of power, failure to take into account their interests, and lack of redress for abuses or access to channels to voice their concerns
- Engaging youth will enhance the development of citizenship and productiveness among them, as they move into adulthood.
85% of world’s youth live in developing countries, which the majority of these live in cities.
Youth Led Development (YLD)

Youth Led Development is development led by and for youth in partnership with their family and community

- Reflects CRC Article 12 and attempts to realize the full participation and meaningful engagement of children and youth
- YLD recognizes youth as
  - an asset and force for change
  - a resource for the advancement of societies
  - leaders of social, political and technological developments
- Focus of the World Youth Congress, 2008 (Quebec, Canada) and the upcoming World Urban Youth Forum (Nanjing, China)
Nairobi, Kenya

- Youth led initiative has received $20,000 US to:
  - Deliver aid to displaced youth
  - Convene youth roundtable on role of youth in peacebuilding
  - Train 100 youth in conflict resolution and mediation skills
GIS Asset Mapping
Dar es Salaam, Tanzania
- Children and youth map city services and youth friendly spaces
- Creation of 12 Youth Friendly City Ward brochures and 1 youth friendly city guide
- Creation of online youth asset map

Nairobi, Kenya
- Children and youth map water resources in Korogocho slum
- Pilot of indicator data collection for Urbaninfo
- Model for disaster mitigation
Kibera Slum

- Over 60% of slum dwellers are under the age of thirty, many of them young girls
- Up to 300 people share a single toilet
- Average woman or girl in Kibera spends up to 4 hours a day fetching water
- Lack of access to sanitation is the single largest cause of disease for young women, and the single contributing factor to why adolescent girls drop out of school
UN HABITAT and youth led urban development

“Opportunities Fund for Urban Youth-Led Development”

The fund will support youth-led initiatives for:

- Strengthening youth policy formulation;
- Building capacities of governments, CSOs and business to address youth issues;
- Supporting information and communication networks; innovative ideas on employment, governance, shelter;
- Sharing of best practices;
- Promoting entrepreneurship and employment for youth;
- Promoting gender mainstreaming in all youth activities.
UNICEF/UN HABITAT

1. Joint action research projects focused on children, youth and transitions
2. Support the increased understanding and facilitation of urban child and youth friendly spaces
3. Collaboration in understanding and engaging local authorities, planning agencies (UCLG, ICLEI, Metropolois)
4. Joint support of the Opportunities fund for Youth Led Development
5. Joint programming at World Urban Forum, assuring both child and youth representation
“It is high time that we stopped viewing our young people as part of the problem and started cultivating their promise and potential...., let us all resolve to invest in and protect our most valuable resource, and give young men and women a fair and full stake in our society, and in its success “

- UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon