

Annex 2: Photos from Torba Province

Loh Island

The rising sea level causing the inundation of these low laying areas used be a coconut plantation adjacent to the main village of Loh

Villagers & Community Leaders pose for a photo session with the mission team to Loh island early this as part of the initiation plan to sensitization of the Community Resilience Proiect

Coastal erosion due to rising sea levels on the lagoon side – washing away of coastal habitat & vegetation over time.

Water Tank Storage of 4000 – 6000 litres funded by EU – Non State Actors Project only means of water source for the island of Loh.

Entrance to the Cave which has been used by the people of Loh Island as their Evacuation centre for safety during natural disasters such as tronical cvclones

It takes 30 minutes each day to walk to Robin School located inland on the island of Loh.