

Mohammad Abdur Razzaque

Chairman, RAPID, Bangladesh

Dr Mohammad Abdur Razzaque is an economist with extensive senior leadership, management, and consultancy experience. He is an expert on international trade with vast experience in undertaking research and analysis on emerging issues in global trade, bi-lateral and regional trade deals, multilateral trade negotiations, export competitiveness, and geopolitical developments affecting international trade. Previously, he worked for many years at Commonwealth Secretariat, London, UK, in various capacities including Head of International Trade Policy. He has led and managed numerous multi-country (involving sub-Saharan African, South Asian, Caribbean, and Pacific economies) and Bangladesh-specific policy research and capacity-building projects. He has written extensively on such issues as trade policy and negotiation challenges, LDC graduation, regional integration, and the impact of policy changes on trade performance. On these and other applied development issues, he is widely consulted by international and regional organizations. He has worked with senior policymakers in many different countries. He is a director at the Policy Research Institute of Bangladesh and also serves as Chairman of Research and Policy Integration for Development (RAPID) Bangladesh.
