

SUBMISSIONS TO THE PEACE BUILDING COMMISSION SECRETARIAT

Addressing political guidance and building momentum ahead of the 2024 and 2025 peace building architectural review becomes imperative to restructure the ecosystem and globalization, as many political leaders have lost consciousness of social value and responsibility which has given rise to economic decadence. Which will also draw millions of people under the line of poverty. As the globe depends more on advanced technological solution, also more complex challenges need to be addressed. This is where the United Nation sustainable development goals come to mitigate the numerous challenges of humanity, industries, economy and climate change.

This is giving a clearer visibility that the Peace Building Commission is laying a foundation upon which we must all build together. This is where policy makers, captain of industries, institutions, head of entrepreneurs/Technologies and the likes of them, will take direction and guidelines as conferred by the UN.PBC to prevent conflict, but rather advance peace.

The Secretary General's vision is on how to strengthen multilateral action for peace in a world in transition.

- Identify the challenges surrounding the subject matter, which are concept, methods and institutions.
- Analyse its needs and magnitude, expected defect/barriers of multilateralism to prevent conflict , and advance peace. Achieving a strange territory requires understanding, synergy and submission.

Another aspect that need to be address to bring to a logical conclusion is; where does this agenda finds expression more? This has to do with Demography and Global citizenship (social responsibility). All the UN member state region and challenges has to be put into consideration than ever. "should be invited on global summit" to catch and key into the vision of peace building architectural review.

- The multilateralism is a revolution and a movement, we cannot talk about it, without first letting the world know its benefits and implications then the UN have to deliberately create values around it.
1. Consideration for strategic planning; all concerned should be well informed and incorporated to know that multilateralism is key factor in handling transitional problems and guarantee global stability /sustainable development.
 2. Steps member states could take through the multilateral system to address shared challenges to peace building and sustaining peace as we approach the summit of the future 2025 peace building architecture review:
 - Education: The UN/Ecosom should deem it fit to build formative training centre in all partner state and confirm a custodian.
 - structure of Train the Trainer system for pedagogical purposes. where women, youth and men will be trained on human capacity development. This is first to achieve the UN sustainable development goals, and include global citizen education to drive multilateralism.
 - At the end of each session the beneficiary will take a project after which will be empowered. This will create an impact that will go down well with the member state. Also to feel the presence of UN more than ever.
 3. The peace building commission could help generate renewed commitment to multilateralism, thus: by discipline and reward system.

Recruit more efficient hands, shift transfers, addressing issues without baise as a global citizen.

- waking up to responsibilities and quick feedback/regular situation report on duty.

The changes that may be carried out to elevate its work for greater impact:

- evaluation of staffs and officers strength and delivering.

- define a methodological approach to any uprising without breaking protocols.

The priorities to be addressed through the summit of the future 2024 and 2025

- identify the targets in their classes
- know the challenges of their different classes.
- Address the challenges in their different classes.
- Create impact down to the grass root and this impact will bring visibility.
