New York, 8 January 2016

H.E. Mr. Mogens Lykketoft
President of the General Assembly
United Nations

H.E. Mr. Elbio Rosselli
President of the Security Council
United Nations
Dear Mr. Lykkefeldt,
Dear Mr. Rosselli,

I have the honor to nominate Ms. Vesna Pusić, PhD, for the post of Secretary-General of the United Nations. I thereby reconfirm Ms. Pusić’s nomination which we had already announced in our letter of October 21, 2015.

For the past four years Ms. Pusić has been holding the office of the Minister of Foreign and European Affairs, and for the last three years also the office of the First Deputy Prime Minister of the Republic of Croatia.

Ms. Pusić has a distinguished national and international career, both as a politician and a member of the academia, which makes her completely suited for assuming this position of global leadership and responsibility. She has been actively involved in the national and international politics for more than two decades, and had a very prominent role in Croatia’s accession negotiations to the European Union, chairing the Parliamentary Committee in charge of monitoring of these negotiations. Prior to that, she was also serving as a Deputy Speaker of the National Parliament, and as a Vice-President of the European Liberals.

In her tenure as the First Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign and European Affairs, she has been especially active on development, humanitarian and human rights issues. A particular focus in her work has been on the empowerment of women and girls, especially in post-conflict and transition societies, a topic which she strongly advocated both in the UN and the EU framework.

H. E. Mr. Mogens Lykkefeldt
President of the General Assembly
United Nations

H. E. Mr. Elbio Rosselli
President of the Security Council
United Nations
I am confident that Ms. Pusić would bring to the post of the Secretary-General of the United Nations a unique and rewarding combination of strong leadership, vision, personal integrity, management skills, rich academic background and above all deep understanding of global and regional issues.

I strongly support and believe in the principle of equitable geographical distribution for the highest leadership positions in the UN system. Since up to now only the Eastern European Group has not had the honor to have its representative in the position of the Organization’s highest official, we believe that the next Secretary-General should come from our region.

Furthermore, I also strongly support the gender equality principle in the process of selection and appointment of the Secretary-General. After 70 years of the Organization’s existence, it is high time that a woman of impeccable and outstanding credentials be considered on an equal basis for this highly eminent post, and we are strongly convinced that Ms. Pusić, with her tireless dedication and many years of intensive leadership on global, development and human rights issues, is best suited for this demanding task.

I would be grateful if consultations could be facilitated and Member States as well as the Security Council informed, in accordance with paragraph 60 of General Assembly resolution 51/244 of 31 July 1997, and the present letter and its annex circulated as an official document of the General Assembly.

I stand ready to provide you with any additional information, if needed.

Yours sincerely,

[Signature]

Summary

My professional career has developed in three areas:
- Academia and scientific research
- Non-governmental sector of social activism
- Politics – Government

Over time I worked in these three areas consecutively, but they also overlapped and I had been active in more than one area simultaneously. My experience in one area definitely informed and influenced my work in the others, which created more of a synergy than an orderly chronology.

- My academic and scientific career started in 1975 and lasted until 2010. However, the last 10 years – 2000 to 2010 – were the years where I focused more on politics, while still teaching at the University of Zagreb.
- My first NGO was also the first feminist group in former Yugoslavia, which I started with 6 other women in 1979. In 1992 I co-founded and became director of the Erasmus Guild, a nongovernment, nongovernment, non-partisan think-tank for the culture of democracy. The think-tank was active from 1992 to 1998. In that capacity I was the publisher of ERASMUS, a journal promoting the culture of democracy.
- I entered politics in 2000 when I was first elected an MP. I have since served both in the legislative and the executive branches.
Main areas of academic and research interest: political theory, theory of democracy, transition and transformation in post-communist and post-conflict societies, organizational theory, industrial relations, industrial democracy and gender studies. I have published scientific work and lectured in all of these areas.

- 1976 – 1978: worked as a researcher at the Institute of Sociology, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia.
- Since 1978: working at the Sociology Department, University of Zagreb; 1992-1994, Head of the Department;
- 1998: elected to full Professor, teaching courses in Sociology of Politics and Theories of Industrial Democracy.
- Since 2010: still formally affiliated with the University of Zagreb, but not teaching.

During the course of my professional career, I have either led or participated in a number of empirical research projects.

- From 1989 to 1991 I conducted an empirical study on managerial style in 18 of the most successful industrial organizations in Croatia. This served as the basis for an analysis of the managerial elite as a potential caretaker political elite for the transition period in Croatia. The results of this study were published in my book The Leaders and the Managers, Novi Liber, 1992.
- In 1995/96 I coordinated an empirical research project on dominant political, religious, family, work and environmental values in Croatia, which was a part of the global World Value Survey started 17 years earlier by the Institute of Social Research at the University of Michigan. This research became part of a larger project effort in Croatia, entitled A New Agenda for a New Democracy.

- Women and Society – In 1979, together with six other women, started the first feminist group in the former Yugoslavia. At that time feminism was seen both politically and socially as very controversial. But political pressure and attacks created the opposite effect and the group attracted significant interest and grew quickly. Since at that time NGOs were unknown and nonexistent in Yugoslavia, we were also seen as illegal and threatened with formal action. The Croatian Sociological Association offered to host us as part of their activities and the initiative survived within that framework. It became the seminal women's and feminist organization in Croatia for years to come.

- Erasmus Guild - In 1992 I co-founded and became director of the Erasmus Guild, a nongovernment, non-partisan think-tank for the culture of democracy. The think-tank was active from 1992 to 1998. Erasmus Guild published a political journal – ERASMUS, a series of books on political culture, democracy and political transition, as well as organized a number of round-tables on various political issues. All our activities focused on advocating dialogue and finding peaceful solutions for the wars that at that time raged in Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina. We also provided a critical analysis of authoritarian regimes of the 1990s both in Croatia and other countries in the region. Fighting extreme nationalism, in the fall of 1993 Erasmus organized the round-table discussion «Serbs and Croats». It was the first meeting of intellectuals, civil society representatives and Catholic and Orthodox Church officials from Croatia and Serbia since the beginning of the war. For 6 years Erasmus provided a strong voice in Croatia against authoritarianism, extreme nationalism and war. It was strongly criticized by the authorities, but it also provided a positive influence on the changes that started in the second half of the 90s.
