

“Building Sustainable Peace for All: Synergies between the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and Sustaining Peace”

High Level Dialogue of the President of the General Assembly for the 71st session

24 January 2017, ECOSOC Chamber

Draft concept Paper

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the concept of Sustaining Peace, as outlined in Security Council resolution 2282 (2016) and General Assembly resolution 70/262, are complementary and mutually reinforcing. Sustainable development underpins sustainable peace and more peaceful and inclusive societies create an environment conducive to sustainable development. Sustainable peace is both an enabler and an outcome of sustainable development.

Both the 2030 Agenda and Sustaining Peace seek to advance core principles of the UN Charter and have wide-ranging implications for how Member States, the UN system and other actors advance sustainable development, human rights and collective peace and security in today’s complex and interconnected world. Moreover, by recognizing that sustainable peace could only be achieved when all segments of society are empowered and included, Member States have ensured that Sustaining Peace is in line with the people-centered foundation of the 2030 Agenda.

In recognition of the fundamental interlinkages between the 2030 Agenda and Sustaining Peace, the President of the General Assembly will convene a High Level Dialogue entitled “Building Sustainable Peace for All: Synergies between the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustaining Peace Agenda” on 24 January 2017 at UN Headquarters in New York, with the participation of the President of the Security Council, the President of the Economic and Social Council, and the Chair of the Peacebuilding Commission.

Objectives

The overarching objective of the event is to discuss the mutually reinforcing linkages between Sustaining Peace and the 2030 Agenda, including at country level and ways in which to leverage them optimally in an integrated framework that can assist Member States, United Nations bodies and entities, civil society and other stakeholders to coordinate and enhance their efforts in implementing the SDGs and achieving sustainable peace.

The concrete objectives of the meeting are to:

- enhance greater understanding on how Sustaining Peace relates to the 2030 Agenda in its entirety by highlighting country examples and good practice;
- discuss the linkages between Sustaining Peace and the 2030 Agenda across SDG targets, including those related to the promotion of peaceful and inclusive societies, the fostering of responsive, inclusive, participatory and representative decision-making at all levels, the building of effective, transparent and accountable institutions and the tackling of the root causes of conflict;
- consider the role that women and youth in particular can play in the effort to implement the 2030 Agenda and to sustain peace;

- identify ways to achieve greater coherence in the relevant UN intergovernmental processes relating to these matters;
- exchange views on how to improve coordination among UN offices and entities, and to promote a comprehensive approach which will contribute to the effective implementation of both the SDGs and Sustaining Peace, including at country level;
- discuss ways to promote close strategic and operational partnerships between the United Nations, national Governments and other key stakeholders, including international, regional and sub-regional organizations, international financial institutions, civil society organizations, women's groups, youth organizations, and the private sector, taking into account national priorities and policies.

Format

This one-day meeting will consist of an opening segment, a segment with contributions from high-level speakers, an interactive discussion with experts in this area; three afternoon workshops and a closing segment.

The three workshops will be organized in collaboration with experts and organizations from the UN System and beyond. They will be organized as follows:

Workshop 1: Empowering women, girls and youth for peace and sustainable development

Workshop 2: Managing natural resources for peace and sustainable development

Workshop 3: Strengthening transparent, inclusive and accountable institutions for peace and sustainable development

Member States and civil society are also encouraged to organize meetings and side-events around this meeting.

Participants

Member States will be invited to participate at the level they deem appropriate, taking into account the participants in the opening and the high-level segment. Ambassadors, observers, UN entities, civil society and other stakeholders are also invited with participation from those operating at country level encouraged.

Outcome

A summary from the PGA will be shared with the Member States and could feed into preparations for the high-level meeting on "Peacebuilding and Sustaining Peace" which will be convened during the 72nd session of the UN General Assembly.
