UNCCT Strategic Communications Project

In accordance with Security Council resolution 2354, the project focuses on:

- Sustained and comprehensive approaches to countering narratives
- The importance of engagement with the media and civil society to deny public space to terrorists and violent extremists
- Promoting measures that are in accordance with international human rights law, refugee law and humanitarian law
- Implementing in accordance with the “Comprehensive International Framework to Counter Terrorist Narratives” (S/2017/375), e.g.:
  - National ownership
  - Whole-of-Society engagement and leveraging of local expertise to build capacity to design local interventions
  - Amplification of positive messages

Feedback

“All the topics covered in this workshop were important. They complement each other to have a very good communication strategy.”

“The Mock sessions of a crisis scenario. The lessons stuck with me”

“You really can never be prepared enough for a crisis but this training has been quite empowering because as people in this region, you can never know when a crisis might happen”.

LESSONS LEARNED

1. Nature of the threat

- There is a need to distinguish between terrorist/violent extremist narratives, intercommunal violence narratives and hate speech
- Communications capacities of terrorist actors are diverse: e.g. Al Shabab v. Boko Haram

2. Communications Channels

- A free press is a critical partner in eclipsing terrorist narratives, and there is scope for greater engagement with the industry
- There is a need for hyper-nuanced audience analysis

3. Messengers and Messages

- A strong peace-time narrative that supports social cohesion and community resilience is important
- Safeguarding "credible messengers" and protecting against terrorist "instrumentalization" of media and civil society, especially after attacks, should be a priority
