39. Post-conflict peacebuilding

Overview

During the period under review, the Security Council held seven meetings in connection with the item entitled “Post-conflict peacebuilding”, adopting one resolution<sup>896</sup> and three presidential statements. The meetings can be grouped into three broad categories: (a) debates on post-conflict peacebuilding; (b) reports of the Secretary-General on thematic issues concerning post-conflict peacebuilding; and (c) annual report of the Peacebuilding Commission.

16 April 2010 and 21 January 2011: debates on post-conflict peacebuilding

On 16 April 2010, the Council held an open debate in connection with the item entitled “Post-conflict peacebuilding”. In his opening statement, the President (Japan) highlighted three points relating to cooperation between a post-conflict country and the international community in creating sustainable peace: (a) implementation of a framework for assisting post-conflict countries in an integrated manner; (b) the impact of the assistance and involvement of the <sup>896</sup> Resolution 1947 (2010), by which the Council, inter alia, welcomed the report entitled “Review of the United Nations peacebuilding architecture” (S/2010/393, annex) and requested all relevant United Nations actors to take forward, within their mandates and as appropriate, the recommendations of the report, with the aim of further improving the effectiveness of the Peacebuilding Commission.
