13. Peace consolidation in West Africa

Overview

During the period under review, the Security Council held eight meetings on peace consolidation in West Africa, and adopted one resolution and one presidential statement concerning piracy in the Gulf of Guinea. The Council heard five briefings by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa and Head of the United Nations Office for West Africa (UNOWA), who presented the reports of the Secretary-General on the activities of the Office. The Council in its deliberations focused on political and economic challenges facing the subregion, including recent developments concerning electoral crises, seizes of power, security and the rule of law, refugees, illicit drug traffic, youth unemployment, terrorism, transnational organized crime and maritime insecurity in the Gulf of Guinea, as well as the role of UNOWA in addressing those issues.

Briefings on the activities of UNOWA and developments in the Sahel region

On 16 January 2012, the Council was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa and Head of UNOWA, who provided an overview of the latest developments and challenges in West Africa, including the activities undertaken by UNOWA. Reporting on the positive developments in West Africa, he noted that there had not been recurrence of open conflict in the subregion and said that tensions related to internal institutional or political crises had decreased in both number and intensity. In addition, he stated that a number of countries of the subregion had held elections that were judged credible by the international community, thereby averting potential electoral crises and any resulting destabilization. He paid tribute to all stakeholders in West Africa for their efforts in consolidating stability in the subregion and welcomed the role of the United Nations in supporting such efforts. He, however, cautioned that progress in the region remained tenuous, citing a number of challenges, such as the recent events in Guinea-Bissau, the activities of the Boko Haram group in Nigeria and the Libyan crisis, as well as drug trafficking and organized crime. He drew attention to the re-emergence of transborder threats, and indicated that the significant increase in the number of acts of piracy in the Gulf of Guinea posed a fresh threat to the security and development of the States of the region. He informed the Council that UNOWA would continue to mobilize the United Nations system and strengthen its partnerships with regional and subregional organizations, particularly the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), the Mano River Union and the African Union, and civil society, especially women, in order to better consolidate the achievements that had been made in West Africa.

On 11 July 2012, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General in his briefing introduced the ninth report of the Secretary-General on the activities of UNOWA and reported on, among other challenges, the vulnerable situation in the Sahel region, notably in Mali, on the evolving phenomenon of piracy and armed robbery at sea in the Gulf of Guinea and on the upsurge of violence at the border between Liberia and Côte d’Ivoire. He expressed confidence that the forthcoming African Union summit meeting in Addis Ababa would help in reaching a consolidated African position on the way forward in addressing the situation in the Sahel and emphasized that such a common position would inform the much-needed concerted and coordinated efforts on the Sahel. He further explained that UNOWA and the Dakar-based United Nations agencies would support the development of a comprehensive regional strategy on key priorities in the security, political, human rights, humanitarian and development realms in support of the countries of the region, consistent with the demand of the Council in resolution 2056 (2012). He underlined the need to continue pursuing strategies and resources to eradicate activities of drug cartels and other criminal networks, as well as efforts to prevent election-related tension and violence in West Africa.

The Executive Director of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) reported that West Africa represented a key challenge to UNODC, owing to increased drug trafficking, signs of drug production, growing drug consumption, as well as piracy and insecurity. He indicated that West Africa was no longer simply a transit route for cocaine, but had become a final destination which had resulted in a greater need for prevention and treatment of drug users.\textsuperscript{356} He said that UNODC was reviewing possible links between terrorism and transnational organized crime. He outlined the initiatives of UNODC in addressing those challenges, such as building political commitment through regional platforms, developing inter-agency approaches and delivering solutions through its integrated regional programmes.\textsuperscript{357}

On 25 January 2013, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General presented the tenth report of the Secretary-General on the activities of UNOWA and briefed the Council on the continued challenges to governance, peace consolidation and conflict prevention facing the region. He reported on the ongoing crisis in Mali, the evolving threat posed by piracy and armed robbery at sea in the Gulf of Guinea, and the tensions along the borders of Liberia and Côte d’Ivoire. He detailed the activities and good offices efforts of UNOWA in liaison with its regional partners, in particular ECOWAS and the Mano River Union, as well as with the African Union. He finally drew attention to the significant progress achieved in the demarcation of the boundary between Cameroon and Nigeria facilitated by the United Nations.\textsuperscript{358}

On 10 July 2013, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, in his briefing, recalled the continued political and security as well as humanitarian challenges affecting the subregion, such as election-related tensions, transnational organized crime, piracy and terrorism, as well as food insecurity and malnutrition. In addition to recalling the threats affecting the region covered in previous briefings, he reported on the positive developments in Mali and Guinea which had led to agreements between the parties in conflict, thereby paving the way for the holding of elections in the two countries.\textsuperscript{359}

On 17 December 2013, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General informed the Council that during the second half of 2013 the region had continued to move forward along the path of stability, and commended the commitment of the leaders and peoples of the region. He reported that legislative elections had been held in Togo, Guinea and Mauritania and the post-electoral challenge in Ghana had been brought to an end following the decision of the Supreme Court. Concerning the activities of UNOWA, he noted that the Office continued to focus on carrying out its mandate through actions aimed at preventing conflicts and crises by supporting good offices, mediation and facilitation efforts. He updated the Council on the progress achieved on the border demarcation process between Cameroon and Nigeria as well as on the Mano River basin regarding the tensions at the border between Liberia and Côte d’Ivoire. With respect to the Sahel, he informed the Council of the positive momentum for the coordinated and integrated implementation of the United Nations strategy for the Sahel under the overall leadership of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Sahel.\textsuperscript{360} He reported further on activities by UNOWA and other regional organizations relating to the fight against the threat of piracy and armed robbery at sea in the Gulf of Guinea, security sector reform, combating drug trafficking and organized crime, as well as terrorism. In closing, he acknowledged that, despite the efforts made by countries of the region and their people, the region remained fragile and required ongoing international support.\textsuperscript{361}

Piracy in the Gulf of Guinea

On 27 February 2012, the Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs briefed the Council on the report of the mission dispatched to the Gulf of Guinea by the Secretary-General from 7 to 24 November 2011,\textsuperscript{362} whose main objective was to assess the scope of the threat of piracy in the region and to take stock of national and regional efforts being made to ensure maritime safety and security in the region, as well as to make recommendations for a possible United Nations response. He expressed concern that the threat of piracy had become more alarming as the activities of the pirates had become more violent. Detailing the findings of the assessment mission, he said that, according to the report, piracy in the Gulf of Guinea had become more systematic, with the pirates resorting to sophisticated modes of operation and utilization of heavy weapons. He stressed that countries in the Gulf of Guinea required a united front to respond effectively to the growing threat of piracy along their coasts. He pointed out that the assessment mission had recommended that countries in the Gulf of Guinea should convene a regional summit to develop a comprehensive anti-piracy strategy for the region. While welcoming the support provided by the international community to strengthen the maritime security capacities of countries in the Gulf of Guinea, he asserted that more needed to be done and advocated for concrete steps to eradicate piracy in the Gulf of Guinea.\textsuperscript{363}

In his statement, the Special Representative of the Chairman of the ECOWAS Commission presented the challenges faced, as well as the initiatives launched by States members of ECOWAS in addressing the issue of piracy in the region. He urged all parties concerned to “scale up efforts” to develop a more comprehensive framework that involved all parties to ensure a holistic approach to maritime security, in close cooperation with the United Nations.\textsuperscript{364}

The representative of the Gulf of Guinea Commission welcomed the report of the mission and referred to some of the activities undertaken by the Commission and ECOWAS on maritime safety and security in the region. She commented on the insufficiency of the existing legal framework for dealing with piracy in the region and emphasized the need for a common definition of acts of piracy and for harmonized legislation against piracy in the region.\textsuperscript{365}

Council members welcomed the report of the assessment mission and expressed concern regarding the threat to peace and security, as well as to socioeconomic development, posed by piracy in the Gulf of Guinea. They commended the ongoing initiatives of the Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS), ECOWAS and the Gulf of Guinea Commission in addressing this emerging threat and urged them to work towards the convening of a joint summit of the Gulf of Guinea States aimed at developing a regional anti-piracy strategy, in cooperation with the African Union. They stressed the need for enhanced cooperation and coordination among affected States and regional organizations to develop a comprehensive regional strategy to manage maritime security. There was consensus among most speakers that the United Nations should play a central role in the overall coordination and mobilization of international assistance to build the capacity of regional organizations, including through the provision of financial and technical assistance.

On 29 February 2012, the Council adopted resolution 2039 (2012) in which it encouraged national authorities as well as regional and international partners to consider implementing the recommendations of the United Nations assessment mission. It stressed the primary responsibility of the States of the Gulf of Guinea to counter piracy and armed robbery at sea in the Gulf of Guinea, and requested the Secretary-General through UNOWA and the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa to support States and subregional organizations in convening a joint summit. The Council urged States of the region of the Gulf of Guinea to take prompt action to develop and implement national maritime security strategies, including for the establishment of a legal framework for the prevention and repression of piracy and armed robbery at sea, as well as prosecution of persons engaging in those crimes and the punishment of those convicted of those crimes. The Council also encouraged Benin and Nigeria to extend their joint patrols beyond March 2012 and international partners to consider providing support, as needed. It further encouraged the States of the Gulf of Guinea, ECOWAS, ECCAS and the Gulf of Guinea Commission to develop and implement transnational and transregional maritime security coordination centres covering the whole region of the Gulf of Guinea.

On 14 August 2013, the Council adopted a presidential statement, in which it stressed the need to coordinate efforts at the regional level for the development of a comprehensive strategy to counter the threat of piracy and armed robbery at sea, and the importance of adopting a comprehensive approach led by the countries of the region to counter that threat in the Gulf of Guinea. The Council welcomed the initiatives already taken by States in the region, inter alia, the summit of Heads of State and Government on Maritime Safety and Security in the Gulf of Guinea, held in Yaoundé in June, the adoption of the Code of Conduct concerning the Prevention and Repression of Piracy, Armed Robbery against Ships, and Illegal Maritime Activity in West and Central Africa, as well as the adoption of a political declaration of the Gulf of Guinea Heads of State and Government on maritime safety and security and a memorandum of understanding among ECCAS, ECOWAS and the Gulf of Guinea Commission on maritime safety and security in West and Central Africa. Furthermore, it welcomed the decision to establish in Cameroon an interregional coordination centre responsible for coordinating the implementation of the regional strategy for maritime safety and security. The Council also reiterated its call upon States to criminalize piracy and armed robbery under domestic law and to investigate and prosecute consistent with international law. The Council urged States, international organizations and the private sector to share evidence, information and intelligence, as appropriate, for law enforcement purposes. 366

14. Peace and security in Africa

Overview

During the period under review, the Security Council held 11 meetings and issued seven presidential statements under the item entitled “Peace and security in Africa”. Sub-items discussed in this period included the impact of transnational organized crime on peace, security and stability in West Africa and the Sahel region, the challenges of the fight against terrorism in Africa in the context of maintaining international peace and security, and combating drug trafficking in the Sahel and West Africa. Against the backdrop of the crisis in Mali and the impact of the crisis in Libya on the Sahel region, the Council considered the challenges facing the region and requested the Secretary-General to develop an integrated strategy for the Sahel, which was presented to the Council in the report of the Secretary-General of 14 June 2013.367

Briefing on the impact of the Libyan crisis on the Sahel region

On 26 January 2012, the Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs briefed the Council on the mission dispatched by the Secretary-General from 7 to 23 December 2011 to assess the impact of the Libyan crisis on the Sahel region. He said that most of the challenges predated the Libyan conflict and added that underlying structural challenges and a looming food crisis in the area compounded the immediate problems affecting the region, and that the mission had encountered strong appeals for the United Nations to find a framework for reconciliation between all the regions affected by the outbreak of the crisis. He then summarized the main recommendations of the mission. While acknowledging the structural limitations for coordinated action existing in the African continent, he was encouraged by the readiness of countries inside and outside the region to work together to develop a more comprehensive and coherent approach.368

Speakers generally agreed with the assessment of the Under-Secretary-General that most of the problems of the Sahel region predated the Libyan crisis. However, numerous speakers expressed a particular concern that such problems had been exacerbated by the Libyan crisis.369 This notwithstanding, there was an overwhelming consensus regarding the need to tackle the security situation and challenges affecting the Sahel region, including weapons proliferation, drug trafficking and transnational organized crime, terrorism, food shortages and underdevelopment. While reiterating the need for international support and assistance, many speakers emphasized the primary responsibility of the Governments concerned. Most speakers appreciated and supported the recommendations of the assessment team. They emphasized the need for further cooperation and for the United Nations to adopt a more integrated approach to help the States of the region in the areas of security and development.

Impact of transnational organized crime on peace, security and stability in West Africa and the Sahel region

On 21 February 2012, the Council held a high-level open debate on the impact of transnational organized crime on peace, security and stability in West Africa and the Sahel region. The debate was held at the initiative of the presidency of Togo.370

During the debate, speakers underlined the magnitude and complexity of the challenges confronting the region and expressed concern over the growth of transnational organized crime. Many speakers opined that those difficulties were further exacerbated by the effect of the Libyan crisis. As expressed by the representative of Pakistan, the Libyan crisis had been for the Sahel region “like a genie in a bottle. The bottle has been uncorked and the genie is out”.371 Most speakers suggested that, in the light of the challenges, a multifaceted and holistic approach was necessary. Many speakers highlighted the need for further resources and for further national, regional and international cooperation.
