Part I. Consideration of questions under the responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security

During the period under review, the Security Council held one meeting in connection with the item entitled “General issues relating to sanctions”. This was the first meeting under that item since 2006. The Council members were briefed by the Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs and the Secretary-General of the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL). Recognizing sanctions as an important tool to manage conflict and acknowledging the improvement of targeted sanctions in minimizing humanitarian impact on civilians, several speakers addressed the challenges in effectively implementing sanctions and stressed the need for strengthening due process, building national capacities, enhancing communication and coordination between and among relevant United Nations offices, countries affected and other international and regional actors, and engaging with the wider membership of the United Nations and the private sector.

31. Women and peace and security

During the period under review, the Security Council held four meetings, including one high-level meeting, adopted one resolution and issued one presidential statement in connection with women and peace and security (see table 1).

The Council further held discussions on sexual violence in conflict, displaced women and girls, and conflict-related sexual violence. Most importantly, on 13 October 2015, the Council adopted resolution 2242 (2015), marking the high-level review and fifteenth anniversary of the adoption of resolution 1325 (2000). One hundred and thirteen speakers, the highest number of speakers in the history of the Council, participated in the open debate on 13 and 14 October 2015.

During that meeting, consideration was given to the report of the Secretary-General on women and peace and security, which contained findings and recommendations of the global study commissioned by the Secretary-General pursuant to paragraph 16 of resolution 2122 (2013), and an update on annual progress towards the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000).

In 2014 and 2015, the Council continued to include provisions relating to women and peace and security in its country-specific decisions and in decisions relating to thematic issues. Table 2 lists provisions by which the Council, inter alia, (a) called upon Governments, United Nations missions and parties to support women’s participation and engagement in peace and political processes as well as in developing strategies to counter terrorism and violent extremism; (b) requested concerned parties to make specific and time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence; (c) requested the establishment or
