40. Maintenance of international peace and security

During the period under review, the Council held 25 meetings, including 10 high-level meetings,\textsuperscript{421} adopted seven resolutions, two of them under Chapter VII of the Charter,\textsuperscript{422} and issued three presidential statements. Nine of the meetings were open debates. More information on the meetings, including on participants, speakers and outcomes, is given in the table below.

During the period, the Council held meetings under a broad range of sub-items of both a thematic and a regional nature. Examples of the thematic sub-items include: (a) respect for the principles and purposes of the Charter of the United Nations as a key element for the maintenance of international peace and security; (b) nuclear non-proliferation and nuclear disarmament; (c) water, peace and security; (d) trafficking in persons in conflict situations; (e) destruction and trafficking of cultural heritage by terrorist groups and in situations of armed conflict; (f) mine action; and (g) famine. Region-specific sub-items include (a) prevention and resolution of conflicts in the Great Lakes region; (b) migrant-smuggling and human trafficking in Libya; and (c) conflicts in Europe.

In 2016, the Council held a meeting for the first time on water, peace and security.\textsuperscript{423} At the meeting, \textsuperscript{422} Resolutions 2312 (2016) and 2380 (2017).

\textsuperscript{423} See S/PV.7818.
speakers emphasized the need for transboundary water cooperation as a means for conflict prevention. In 2017, for the first time, the Council adopted a resolution regarding the protection of cultural heritage against its destruction and the trafficking in cultural property perpetrated by terrorist groups in situations of armed conflict. In that regard, in resolution 2347 (2017), the Council affirmed that directing unlawful attacks against sites and buildings dedicated to religion, education, art, science or charitable purposes, or historic monuments may constitute, under certain circumstances and pursuant to international law, a war crime, and that perpetrators of such attacks must be brought to justice.424

Other decisions of the Council addressed some of the thematic sub-items outlined above. With regard to the question of nuclear non-proliferation, the Council adopted resolution 2310 (2016),425 urging all States that had either not signed or not ratified the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty to do so without further delay. In addition, the Council called upon States to refrain from conducting any nuclear weapon test explosion or any other nuclear explosion.426

During the period under review the Council adopted, under Chapter VII of the Charter, two resolutions concerning human trafficking, resolution 2312 (2016)427 and resolution 2380 (2017). By the resolutions, the Council renewed for successive periods of 12 months each the authorizations set out in paragraphs 7 to 10 of resolution 2240 (2015) for Member States to take action to address the smuggling of migrants and trafficking in persons in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Libya, including all measures commensurate to the specific circumstances in confronting migrant smugglers or human traffickers, including inspecting vessels on the high seas off the coast of Libya.428 The Council also adopted resolution 2331 (2016), in which it called upon Member States to take a series of measures to address trafficking in persons in areas affected by armed conflict, including by taking action to ensure accountability of those who engage in trafficking in persons.429 In resolution 2388 (2017), the Council reaffirmed its condemnation of trafficking in human beings, and called upon Member States to take specific measures to combat it.430 The Council particularly condemned the sale of persons by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL, also known as Da’esh), and other violations and abuses by Boko Haram, Al Shabaab, the Lord’s Resistance Army and other such groups for the purpose of sexual slavery, sexual exploitation and forced labour.431 Finally, in a presidential statement, the Council expressed grave concern about reports of migrants being sold into slavery in Libya, and called upon all relevant authorities to investigate such activities and hold those responsible to account. The Council underlined the importance of a comprehensive response for all migrants in Libya and strengthened international cooperation with the Libyan authorities, noted that the Government of National Accord of Libya had launched an investigation into the reported incidents, and welcomed the work of the United Nations Support Mission in Libya, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and the International Organization for Migration.432

In regard to mine action, the Council adopted resolution 2365 (2017). In the resolution, the Council expressed grave concern over the threat that landmines, explosive remnants of war and improvised explosive devices posed to civilians, refugees returning to their homes, as well as to peacekeepers, humanitarian personnel, civilian personnel and law enforcement personnel, and stressed the need to undertake appropriate measures to mitigate this danger effectively. The Council encouraged efforts by all actors to conduct mine action activities, in accordance with standards consistent with the International Mine Action Standards.433

The Council issued a presidential statement regarding famine, in which it expressed concern about the unprecedented level of global humanitarian needs and the threat of famine facing more than 20 million people in Yemen, Somalia, South Sudan and northeast Nigeria, and called for the disbursement of funds pledged to address the situations in those countries. It emphasized that ongoing conflicts and violence had devastating humanitarian consequences and hindered an effective humanitarian response in the short, medium and long term and were therefore a major cause of famine. The Council requested the Secretary-General to provide early warning when a conflict having devastating humanitarian consequences and hindering an effective humanitarian response risked leading to an outbreak of famine.434

424 Resolution 2347 (2017), para. 4.
425 The resolution was adopted with the abstention of one Council member (Egypt).
426 Resolution 2310 (2016), paras. 1 and 4.
427 The resolution was adopted with the abstention of one Council member (Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela).

41. Cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in maintaining international peace and security

During the period under review, the Security Council held eight meetings, adopted one resolution and issued one presidential statement in connection with the item entitled “Cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in maintaining international peace and security”. More information on the meetings, including on participants, speakers and outcomes, is given in the table below.

The Council considered cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union on peace and security issues at four meetings in 2016–2017. On 24 May 2016, the Council adopted a presidential statement in which it acknowledged the progress made in the ongoing cooperation between the two organizations and stressed the importance of strengthening it and developing an effective partnership underpinned by mutual consultations between the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council of the African Union in their respective decision-making processes and common strategies for a holistic response to conflict, as appropriate, based on respective comparative advantage, transparency and accountability to address common security challenges in Africa in accordance with the Charter, including Chapter VIII and the purposes and principles. The Council commended the efforts of the African Union to further strengthen its capacity, including through the operationalization of the African Peace and Security Architecture, and welcomed continued cooperation on its different components, including on early warning, preventive diplomacy, mediation, electoral assistance, peacekeeping, conflict prevention and resolution, promotion of human rights and the rule of law, protection of women and children in conflict and post-conflict, and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction.

During the period under review, the Council also considered proposals from the Secretary-General, in coordination with the African Union, on possible options to finance and support African Union peace operations authorized by the Council. In resolution 2320 (2016) of 18 November 2016, the Council stressed the need to enhance the predictability, sustainability and flexibility of financing for African Union-led peace support operations, and expressed its readiness to consider proposals in that regard. The Council emphasized that consultative analysis and joint planning with the United Nations was critical to developing joint recommendations on the scope and resource implications of potential peace support operations.

At two meetings the Council discussed cooperation on the maintenance of peace and security between the United Nations and the European Union. Council members emphasized the shared values of the two organizations in the maintenance of international peace and security and, specifically, in the context of a range of conflicts and issues of mutual concern, including the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic and the nuclear programme in the Islamic Republic of Iran, global migration and displacement, and counter-terrorism and violent extremism.

The contributions of regional and subregional organizations in addressing threats to international peace and security, including with respect to combating terrorism, drug trafficking, organized crime and countering extremist ideology, were also discussed at two additional meetings, one on the partnership between the United Nations and the Collective Security Treaty Organization, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization and the Commonwealth of Independent States, and one on the Organization of Islamic Cooperation.
