Actions in the municipalities

Chapter I. Sustainable development and financing for development

The banks and financing agents say they have the resources, however the problem seems to be found in the formation of the governments' strategic project portfolios, which do not meet the specifications. Communication and coordination must improve.

Chapter II. International peace and security

Police forces must be trained in human rights. Security institutions must be provided with the necessary equipment to provide the service.

Chapter III. Science, technology and innovation and digital cooperation

The creativity of the implementers of the 2030 Agenda can carry out inclusive actions without the need for financial resources. However, it will always be advisable to create alliances with local universities and research centers to provide support and legitimacy.

Chapter IV. Youth and future generations

The young population represents an attractive sector for the mobilization of voluntary actions in favor of the SDGs, however, the highest level of government authorities in the countries must promote policies so that the message reaches all schools and universities.

Chapter V. Transforming global governance

Governance is only possible with leaders convinced of the implementation of the 2030 Agenda; public support must be permanent throughout the entire process. Building trust among stakeholders is crucial to moving forward. The institutional is essential.
