STATEMENT DELIVERED BY

HONOURABLE MRS. BERNADETTE MLAKA MALIRO, MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT FOR THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF THE REPUBLIC OF MALAWI AT THE UNITED NATIONS DURING THE 54TH SESSION OF THE COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN

ON AGENDA ITEM 3

FOLLOW UP TO THE FOURTH WORLD CONFERENCE ON WOMEN AND TO THE TWENTY-THIRD SPECIAL SESSION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ENTITLED “WOMEN 2000: GENDER EQUALITY, DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE FOR THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY”

MARCH 3, 2010

NEW YORK

CHERCK AGAINST DELIVERY
Mr. Chairman,

Excellencies,

Distinguished delegates,

First and foremost, let me on behalf of the Government of the Republic of Malawi, and indeed, on my own behalf, express our heartfelt condolences and sympathies to the people and Government of Chile on the recent loss of lives and tremendous damage of their infrastructure that have been caused by the earthquake that occurred in the country and its aftershocks.

Mr. Chairman,

Let me congratulate you and the other members of the bureau on your election to preside over the deliberations of this important session and would like commend you on the manner in which you are conducting the meetings. And I would like to assure you of my delegation’s full cooperation and support throughout the period of the session.

My delegation aligns itself with the statement made by the Group of 77 and China. Malawi also aligns itself with the African Group.

The government of Malawi fully recognizes the fact that no meaningful sustained development can take place without the full and equal as well as active involvement and participation of women and girls. To this effect, the promotion of gender equality and empowerment of women is at the core of the development agenda of the government. This is demonstrated by the formulation and implementation of national policies as well as legislation and the adoption and or ratification of gender-related regional and international treaties, conventions and protocols.

Notable among these are the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), the Protocol on the African Charter on Human Rights (also known as the African Women’s Protocol), the Convention of the Rights of the Child (CRC) and the SADC Gender and Development Protocol. Additionally, the Malawi Government has also in place the National Gender Policy, the National Gender Program, the national Response to Combat Gender-based Violence and the National Program on Increasing Women Representation in Parliament and Local Government.

Mr. Chairman,

The Malawi Government has also formulated and reviewed gender-related laws as part of its efforts to promote gender equality in areas such as wills and inheritance of deceased property; marriage, divorce and family relations; gender-based violence; protection of children and juvenile justice. Other laws being reformed include those aimed at addressing trafficking of women and children.

Mr. Chairman,

As we are reviewing the fifteen years of implementing the Beijing Platform of Action, Malawi reaffirms its full commitment to the ideals and provisions of this landmark blueprint. Let me mention that 52% of Malawi’s population of 13.1 million are women. In this regard, Malawi has made considerable achievements in the implementation of activities in almost all the twelve critical areas of concern in the Beijing Platform, despite inevitable challenges.

Mr. Chairman,

In terms of education, the Malawi Government has put in place deliberate programs and policies to ensure that boys and girls have equal access to education. The Free Primary School Program introduced in 1994, coupled with other interventions such as the School Feeding Program have increased the enrollment of girls and boys in primary schools and their retention and completion levels. Additionally, the Re-Admission Policy for Teen Mothers, Bursary Schemes, construction of girls’ hostels, a 50-50 selection policy into secondary schools are all aimed at ensuring that female students are able to enroll and complete their secondary education. At tertiary level, a 60-40 percent quota system for admission of male and female students into university is in place as well as an increase in bed space for female students in the University of Malawi.

Mr. Chairman,

In terms of health, the Government is continuing implementing health-care policies aimed at ensuring that women and girls, particularly in rural areas, have access to sexual and reproductive health services. For example, in 2007, the Government developed the Roadmap on the Reduction of Maternal Mortality aimed at accelerating the reduction of maternal and neonatal mortality and morbidity. This has resulted in the reduction of Malawi’s maternal mortality rate from 897 in 2007 to 807 for 100,000 live births in 2009. Presently other programs and services also focus on reducing unsafe abortions, HIV and AIDS prevalence rates and scaling up access to ARVs and prevention of mother to child transmission (MPTC) services.

Mr. Chairman,

As a way of promoting women in politics and decision making positions, the Government in 2008 launched a National Program on Increasing Representation of Women in Parliament and Local Government, popularly known as the 50-50 campaign. Some of the fruits of the program is that in the 2009 elections, a record 42 women were elected to the House of Parliament, representing 27 percent from 14 percent in the last election in 2004. Historically, Malawi now has a female Vice President, showing a 50-50 ratio in the highest decision-making ranks.

Mr. Chairman,

Permit me to reiterate my government’s commitment to continue promoting gender equality and empowerment of women by among other things, relentlessly implementing activities related to the Beijing Platform of Action thereby facilitating the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals and other international agreed goals. The implementation of these activities is guided by the Malawi Growth and Development Strategy, the overarching strategy for social and economic development and poverty reduction in Malawi.

Thank you for your attention.
